3 Ohio Residents And 2 Soldiers Die in Tragedy

Berkley, W.Va. — Five persons were killed early today in a head-on collision of two cars on the West Virginia turnpike, about 15 miles north of here. Five others were hospitalized.

State Police Lt. R. G. Coen said the accident happened at Milepost 53 near the Mossy interchange.

Involved in the wreck were six soldiers from Fort Bragg, N.C. in one car and four persons from Troy, Ohio, in the other.

Car on Wrong Side

Coen said two of the soldiers were killed and four injured, three critically. Three occupants in the Ohio car were killed and one was injured.

"One car was on the wrong side of the road," he said, "but the two cars were so demolished that it was impossible to tell which was."

The accident happened about 2:30 a.m.

Parts of the vehicles were scattered all over the highway.

Coen said he checked with Fort Bragg authorities but they were unable to tell immediately whether the soldiers were on furlough or were being transferred to another base.

117 Children Taken From Ontario Farm

Bowmanville, Ontario — Ontario health and welfare officials moved in on Whytehaven mission with a fleet of 29 cars last night and removed 117 children from a farm refuge.

Mrs. Bertha Whyte, 43, who claims she has a "covenant with God" to harbor homeless and needy children, had operated the bustling nonsectarian mission for 10 years. Mrs. Whyte left the farm soon after the fleet of cars appeared, protesting that she could not bear to see the children taken from her.

"They still have not proved that I neglected any of my children," she said. "I want proof of the statement."

Late yesterday health and welfare officials received a court order declaring the children were neglected. The mission had been under criticism because of influenza, infectious hepatitis and gastro enteritis outbreaks.

Officials said the home also was overcrowded and ignored fire regulations. Some of the dormitories were converted barns. The bathroom was an outhouse.

The children were distributed to nearby welfare agencies and isolation hospitals. Several of the children cried when they were taken away. Seven or eight of the older boys tried to escape into nearby bushes.

U.S. Sounds Out Allies on Possible Khrushchev Visit

Russia Acts to End Virtual Blackout Of Nixon's Speech

Radio and TV Tell People About American's Address

Moscow — The Russians took a belated step today to increase the Soviet audience to which Vice President Richard M. Nixon will speak in defense of U. S. cold war policy in a TV-radio address tonight.

The Russians agreed to end a virtual news blackout on the speech by carrying a series of announcements on radio and TV telling Russians to tune in at 8 p. m. (noon, central daylight time)

This was announced at a news conference by Herbert Klein, the vice president's spokesman. He said three announcements will be made over 10 TV stations that extend 300 miles outside Moscow. Further announcements were promised over a radio chain reaching the whole of the Soviet Union.

Uncensored Talk

Moreover, Nixon was put on a spot that normally attracts a big audience, the 8 o'clock light humor hour. The Russians had agreed to let Nixon make an uncensored radio-TV speech in exchange for the courtesy shown First Deputy Premier Frol R. Kozlov in his visit to the United States. Kozlov made an hour-long speech over a coast-to-coast television network from Washington which was well advertised in advance.

Nixon has been banking heavily on reaching a wide Soviet audience to give an uncensored view of western policy to the Russian people. They usually read and hear only what the Kremlin wants them to know.

West Won't Retreat

The vice president intends to tell them directly what he considers the "real facts" responsible for international tension and answer hecklers of U.S. foreign policy. While emphasizing the western desire for peace and friendship, Nixon planned to make clear that the west will not back down on such critical issues as the future of Berlin regardless of Soviet threats.

Speaking from a Moscow TV studio, Nixon is expected to appeal for more direct Soviet-American personal contacts from the highest leaders to the man in the street. The vice president was to avoid issuing a personal invitation to Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev to visit the United States, even though he believes such a visit might help promote Soviet-American friendship.

Any such invitation must come from President Eisenhower. As the No. 2 man in the administration, Nixon can only recommend to the president on inviting Khrushchev.

Restore Six Derailed Cars

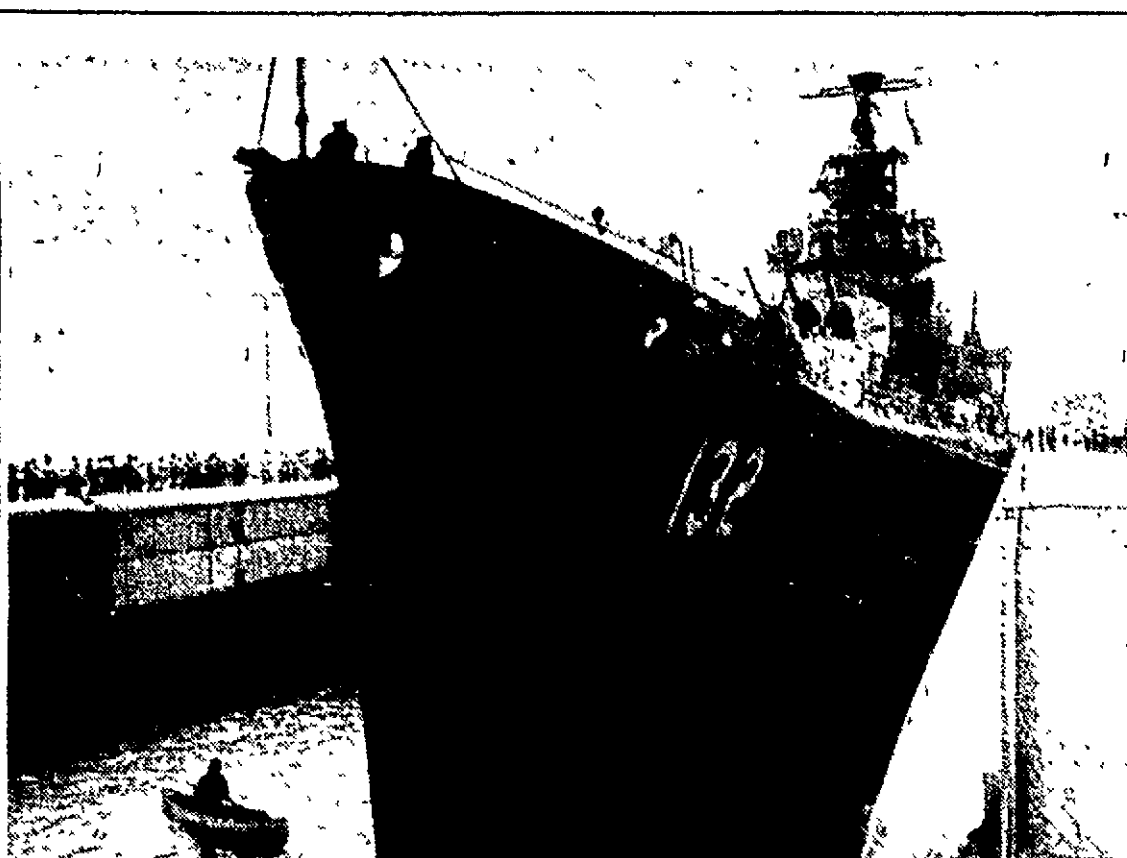

Last of 7 Expected To be Hauled Up Sometime Today

Menomonee — Salvage crews have hauled up all but one of the seven derailed cars of the North Western railway's "Twin Cities 400."

More than 100 persons were injured in the wreck Thursday. All but five of the 47 passengers who required treatment in hospitals here and at Baldwin were released late Friday.

Three passenger coaches whiplashed down the side of a bluff overlooking U. S. Highway 12 near here. Four other cars remained comparatively upright along the right-of-way which runs along a curve at the scene of the wreck.

Workmen managed to get two of the three cars that hurtled about 40 feet off the track back up the steep slope and planned to get the remaining car up today.

St. Lawrence Seaway authorities would not permit Post-Crescent columnist Charles House in the locks with his canoe but they apparently changed their minds and gave permission to Dr. Homer Dodge, president emeritus of Norwich university in Vermont. Wants to Fly to U. S.

Soviet Chief Comments as He Inspects American Jets

Moscow — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev inspected an American jetliner today and said he would like to fly to the United States in "this one or some other one."

The Soviet leader said he would like to make such a trip "when the time is ripe in good time." Khrushchev made these comments to American newsmen as he inspected two jetliners at Moscow airport, one of them was the plush Boeing 707 which brought Vice President Richard M. Nixon to Moscow.

Khrushchev, who has been in the Ukraine, made a surprise return to the capital apparently for a further meeting with Nixon before the vice president leaves for Warsaw tomorrow.

In Jovial Mood

The Soviet premier was in a jovial mood as U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson showed him through the two jetliners. He pronounced the jets "very good." But he added the Soviet military version of its TU114 could make a non-stop round trip between Moscow and New York.

American jazz music was piped through the cabin of one of the airliners to create a gay atmosphere. Khrushchev proposed this toast:

"To the aircraft designers of America and all the scientists who build these wonderful planes and the pilots so skillful in bringing them to Moscow."

Holding aloft a glass of American whisky, he also toasted the U.S. government. President Eisenhower, Nixon and Thompson.

Thompson answered the two toasts by noting that the U.S. air force jet liner Khrushchev was inspecting was a conversion of a military plane.

Envoy's Toast

"I'd like to propose a toast to the time when all military planes are converted to civilian use," Thompson said.

"Very good," Khrushchev replied.

Khrushchev's comment about a possible trip to the United States was prompted by a reporter's question. The reporter asked the premier if he would like to fly to the United States in the jet liner.

"This one or another one," Khrushchev replied.

The reporter asked when.

"That is not a question of principle — the type of plane to be used," Khrushchev said. "When the time is ripe — in good time."

He's Jovial

At one point while inspecting Nixon's plane, Khrushchev turned to A. N. Tupolev, the eminent Soviet plane designer, and bellowed:

"Andrei Nikolaevich, you must try to steal something out of this plane."

Then Khrushchev roared with laughter. Tupolev, designer of the big TU114 jetliner that flew nonstop from Moscow to New York recently, seemed perfectly at ease with Khrushchev. He traded jokes with the premier and sometimes interrupted him.

Crash Kills Youth, Rhinelander Girl

Rhineland — A young Rhinelander couple was killed and three companions injured early today, raising Wisconsin's highway toll for the year to 426, compared with 429 on the first day of August a year ago.

Robert L. Eldred, 21, and Carol Ratliff, 15, both of Rhinelander, died when an auto driven by Eldred left the Shepard Lake road four miles east of here at 4 a.m. today. Three companions were taken to a hospital but officials said their injuries were not too serious. The group had taken a friend to his job at a resort and was returning to Rhinelander at the time of the crash.

Republican Takes Over Governorship

Zimmerman Acting Chief of State In Absence of Nelson and Nash

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Wisconsin has a Republican governor, Sec. of State Robert C. Zimmerman. Zimmerman returned to the state capital today to take over the duties and responsibilities of the governorship during the absence of Gov. Gaylord Nelson and Lt. Gov. Philo Nash, both Democrats, and to get some rest from a busy schedule visiting county fairs.

To Puerto Rico

Gov. Nelson left the state today to fly to Miami on the first leg of a trip to Puerto Rico where he will attend a conference of governors, his first since election, during the next week. Lt. Gov. Nash of Wisconsin Rapids, the constitutional second in command in the capitol hierarchy, accompanied him.

The law provides that the secretary of state shall have the duties of the governor when the governor and the lieutenant governor are out of the state.

When reporters called at Zimmerman's capitol office late Friday, they were informed that he was visiting agricultural fairs in central Wisconsin.

The energetic Zimmerman is one of the most diligent campaigners among the state's politicians, and spends most of his spare hours traveling through Wisconsin calling on constituents.

Kennedy Says Berlin Worth Risk of War

Milwaukee — Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass.) said in a television interview Friday night:

"Our position in Europe is worth a nuclear war because if you are driven from Berlin, you are driven from Germany, and if you are driven from Europe you are driven from Asia and Africa and then our time will come next. You have to indicate your willingness to go to the ultimate weapon."

Address Prosecutors Kennedy, regarded as a contender for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination, was here to speak at the annual convention of the National Association of District Attorneys.

He said that Russia was following a policy which he contended was "an attempt to drive us out of West Germany."

"If we are going to break up at Geneva and both sides are now on a collision course," he said, "some conversation between Khrushchev and President Eisenhower would be most useful."

Kennedy added that he favored a summit conference which would bring together Mr. Eisenhower and Khrushchev and heads of government of the western allies.

In a speech to the district attorneys, Kennedy said that criminal syndicates have taken over control of several legitimate business enterprises, but the senator did not name them.

Labor racketeering is only a small part of the problem confronting the McClellan committee of the senate, Kennedy said. He is a member of the committee. "We have been alarmed about racketeers operating un-

A Telephone Call to be long-remembered was received by Mr. and Mrs. John M. Owens, Savannah, Ga., and their daughter, Ruth, from their son, John M. Owens III, insert. Young Owens had been given up for lost in the Grand Canyon for nearly a week. Two companions died. A helicopter rescued Owens.

the story of his 6-day fight for life in the wilds of the Grand Canyon.

John Manson Owens, 15, of Savannah, was found yesterday lying on a sandbar along the Colorado river. His two companions on a hiking trip into the awesome gorge had perished.

He was brought by an army helicopter from the depths of the canyon to a hospital on the gorge's rim.

There, from his hospital bed and between sips of orange juice, he related an amazing story of courage, determination and death.

He told how the Rev. Eugene A. Gavigan, 30, and Walter J. Mahany Jr., 16, both of Savannah, lost in their bids for survival. He told how he won.

Sought Silver Mine

This is his story: "We left Friday (July 23). The padre (Father Gavigan, a native of Racine, Wis.) said 15 years ago when he was a little boy, he found a silver mine down the trail. We talked him into taking us. We were head over heels to go."

"We took three bottles of water, a snake-bite kit, a first aid kit and some food. All the water gave out the first day. Then we lost the trail at night. None of us could sleep because of thirst. Early the next morning we walked along a cliff for what seemed like miles. We didn't have any more food. We started eating cactus pulp."

"I started yelling. Some joker on the other side started yelling like an ape or something. Somebody else hollered, 'Do you really need help.' I hollered yes."

"Then we decided to go

Ministers Nearing End Of Sessions

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Geneva — The United States has sounded out allied governments on their reaction to a possible invitation from President Eisenhower to Soviet Premier Khrushchev to visit the United States, top western diplomats reported today.

These informants said the feasibility of a western summit meeting in advance of the prospective Eisenhower-Khrushchev talk has been discussed.

This development was announced as the Big Four foreign ministers conference neared the windup with negotiations on the Berlin crisis stalled and hope for east-west agreement virtually abandoned.

In diplomatic quarters here the impression prevailed today that an invitation from Eisenhower to Khrushchev would be announced within the next few days.

British Agree

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who has been touring Russia, is scheduled to leave Moscow tomorrow for Warsaw.

At Moscow airport today Khrushchev inspected the jet airliners which took Nixon and a company of newsmen to the Soviet capital and said he would like to fly to the United States in one of those planes "or some other one."

British Foreign Sec. Selwyn Lloyd is reported to have told Sec. of State Christian A. Herter the British government would welcome an Eisenhower-Khrushchev talk and felt it could be useful.

The West German government of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is also reported to have raised no objection but rather to have taken the view that a meeting could be useful. Adenauer, it is understood, is one of those who would like to see a western summit meeting.

May Meet in August

If a western chiefs of state gathering is arranged, the thinking in diplomatic quarters here is that it might be as early as the end of August with the Khrushchev visit to Washington to follow, possibly in September.

Sec. Herter's office maintained silence on Khrushchev speculation today. All inquiries were referred to the White House.

Within the framework of the stalled Big Four conference on the Berlin crisis an Eisenhower-Khrushchev meeting is regarded here as an alternative to an early summit conference, one which might help in the long run to pave the way to a summit conference toward the end of this year or sometime next year.

LC-K to Meet Kaukauna in Valley Loop

Rivals Clash in 2 p.m. Game at Little Chute Park

Little Chute — A pair of Fox Valley league rivals will clash for the third time this season Sunday when the Kaukauna Klubbers invade Legion Memorial park here to meet the Little Chute-Kimberly team. The contest will get underway at 2 p.m.

Each team copped a victory in the previous two meetings of the clubs. Kaukauna dumped the Papermakers from the unbeaten ranks with a rousing 14 to 3 victory in first round league action.

Win Playoff

When the teams tied for the first round title a playoff was necessitated and the Papermakers took a 7 to 2 victory in that game.

So far in the second round the LC-K squad has a 2-0 record while Kaukauna has a 2-1 mark. The Papermakers have topped Reedsville and Oshkosh while the Klubbers beat Valley Fair of Appleton and Harrison and lost to the Menasha Macks.

Al Harke or Bob Schmidt

will probably handle the pitching duties for the Papermakers Sunday. Harke hurled the playoff win against the Klubbers and has been the team's most effective hurler of late. Schmidt seems to have found himself after getting off to a slow start this year. He tossed a no-hitter in the semi-pro tournament at Clintonville.

Klubber Hurler

Kaukauna will have Joe Van Linn or Bill Lappen on the mound. Lappen may get the nod since Van Linn has been hit hard in his last two appearances against the Papermakers.

Other starters for the Papermakers will include Hank Peerenboom catching, Gene Peerenboom at first, Lou Thien at second, Floyd Hammen at short stop and Ed Thomas at third.

Outfielders will include Bob Vanden Burgt, Rog Vander Wyst and Phil Williams.

Kaukauna will have Phil Haas at first, Dick Mulry at second, Harry Wilson at short, Dick Busse at third and "Butch" Fahrenkrug behind the plate. In the outfield will be Paul Bethke, Jack Coenen and Jerry DeBruin.

Hundreds of Youngsters were lined up ready for activities to begin at the Kaukauna pool annual "Fun Day" Wednesday and then the rains came. A portion of the crowd is shown along one side of the pool.

Religious Leader Says Churches Should Give Up Tax Exemptions

BY GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

New York — A leading American churchman today predicted eventual revolutionary repercussions if present tax exemptions are continued for religious institutions.

The Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, of Philadelphia, said tax-free churches could "control the whole economy of the nation within the predictable future."

And he added, in an article in the publication, Christianity Today:

"I suggest that 100 years from now the present pattern of religious tax exemption by federal and municipal authorities, if continued, may present the state with problems of such magnitude that their only solution will be revolutionary expropriation of church property."

Signs of Resentment

He said there already are signs of resentment.

Dr. Blake, chief administrative officer of the United Presbyterian church and a leader in national and world interdenominational organizations, urged churches to restudy their position regarding tax policy.

Some other church authorities have raised similar questions in recent years, as church endowments grow and increasing taxes and government programs absorb a spiraling proportion of private income.

Dr. Blake noted that

Lawmakers to Study State High Schools

Express Some Doubt Whether Programs Meet Modern Needs

Madison—Some doubt about the operations of the high schools in an era of virtually universal high school attendance is implied in an interim study decision of the state legislature.

Lawmakers at the motion of Assemblyman Keith Hardie of Jackson county, Democratic floorleader of the lower house of the legislature, have decided to make an examination of the high schools of Wisconsin to determine the "adequacy of the high school program in the preparation for college and for the normal pursuits of adult life."

The study will cover curriculum, the importance and relative position of compulsory subjects, electives, guidance programs and extra curricular activities, and the relationship of the state to the localities in determination of the content and breadth of the high school courses.

Hardie told legislators that "there is a sufficiently articulate demand for a thorough study of the nature and objectives of the high school to warrant a comprehensive study."

The legislature has had interim study committees on education many times, but usually confined to such matters as organization, administration and finance.

About a decade ago an interim committee made a similar study of the functions of the University of Wisconsin as the top institution in the state system of higher education.

Senate Approves New Postmaster At Little Chute

Little Chute — Appointment of Norbert Kilsdonk, 918 N. Depot street, as postmaster here has been approved by the United States senate.

President Eisenhower gave his approval to Kilsdonk's appointment last month and forwarded the appointment to the senate.

Kilsdonk succeeded Anthony Van Wymeren, acting postmaster, who resigned to return to his position with the sheriff's department.

Bank Executive Suffers Burns

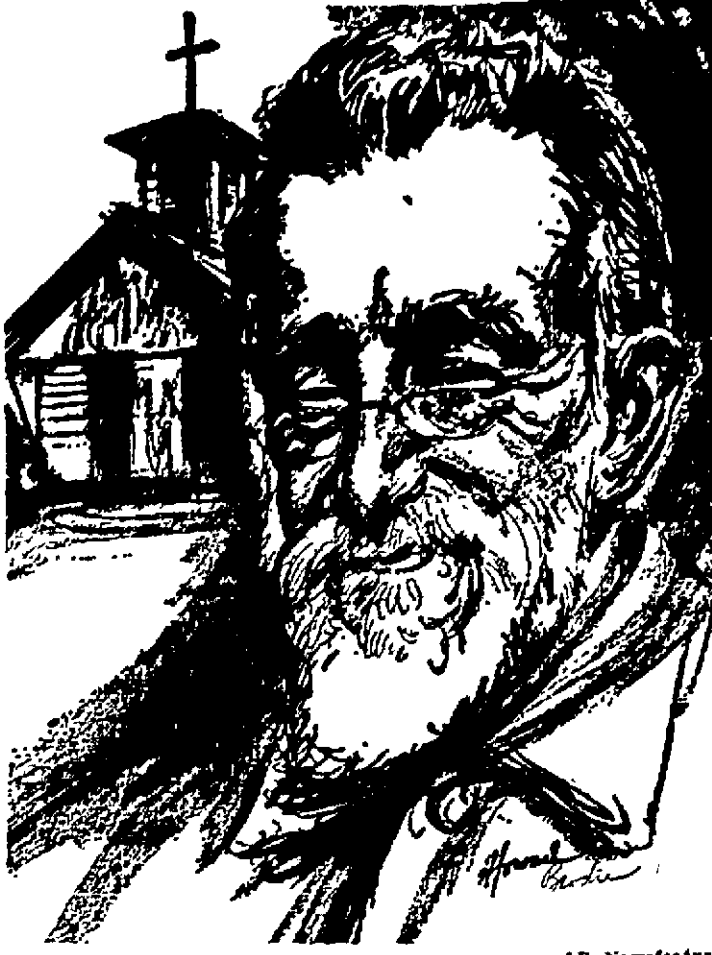

Madison — A retired Madison bank executive suffered face and body burns Thursday in an explosion and flash fire that damaged his garage.

Fire Chief Larry Nielsen of Maple Bluff said Frank W. Jacobs, 81, was the victim of a blast that might have been caused by paint and gasoline fumes being touched off by Jacobs' automobile ignition.

Jacobs is reported in "satisfactory" condition in a Madison hospital.

The blast blew off the roof of the 3-car garage igniting ceiling insulation and timbers that caved in on Jacobs' 1939 convertible coupe.

The POWER of FAITH

A Church Was Built in Stowe, Vt., 10 years ago in memory of a layman known affectionately as Brother Joseph Dutton. People of many faiths come to the Catholic Church of the Blessed Sacrament to pray or find inspiration in his life.

Joseph Dutton left Stowe in 1861 to enlist in the Union Army. He was a courageous soldier. Yet, after the Civil War he became a drunkard for 10 years. He conquered the habit and found faith. Regretting his wasted years, he determined to serve God. He learned of Father Damien's service to lepers on the Hawaiian island of Molokai. Joseph went to the leper colony and remained on the island over 40 years until his death there at 87. He was carpenter, mason and gardener; he dressed sores and performed surgery. He worked hard, arose early, sometimes didn't go to bed at all. At 84, he wrote, "The clock now strikes 4 A.M. and not one-quarter of what I hope to do is done." He took no money for his work and gave away all he had. He became head of the colony and watched it grow into one of the finest in the world.

When 16 U. S. Navy ships steamed by Molokai in 1908, they dipped their flags in salute to the veteran on orders of President Theodore Roosevelt.

"I was firm in at least one resolve," wrote Brother Dutton, "... to do what I could to help my neighbor in every way. It has been my hope never to falter in this ..."

To Play Blanket Game Toss Ball Through Hole in Canvas

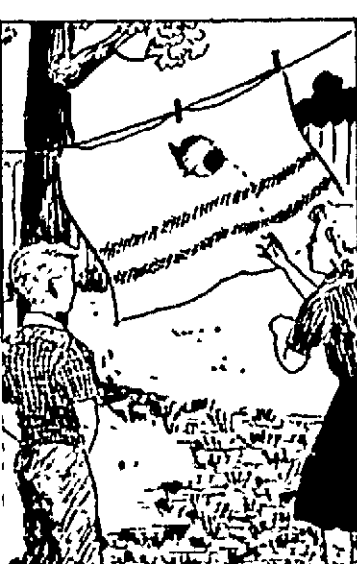

BY CAPPY DICK

If you can find an old blanket or a big piece of canvas that has a hole in it you have, with a baseball, all the equipment needed to play the game of Blanket Ball.

Hang the blanket or canvas on a rope stretched between two trees, if you are playing at a picnic, or between two clothesline posts if you are playing in your back yard. The hole in the blanket should be rather high and big enough for a well-aimed baseball to drop through it.

The players take turns tossing the ball at the hole, aiming to put it through. When a player succeeds he scores 10 points. He then gets another turn. If he fails to drop the ball through the hole, it is the next player's turn. The game ends when one player has become the winner by scoring 100 points.

The game may be played with only two players, or with two teams. The teams take turns and all the points scored.

Toss the ball through the hole.

by each player add to the team's score.

You can make up almost any rules you like, the important thing being that a player or a team scores only when the ball passes through the hole.

Aug. 13 Date Set For Dedication of Meade Land Gift

Conservation Officials to Take Part in Stevens Point Ceremony

Stevens Point — State and company officials will participate here in ceremonies Aug. 13 dedicating to public use the 20,000-acre George W. Meade wildlife area.

Lester P. Voigt, director of the state conservation department, has invited conservationists and other citizens to attend the exercises planned for the formal acceptance by the state conservation commission of the gift of land by the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company of Wisconsin Rapids.

The potentially productive wildlife tract is located on the Little Eau Claire river between Marshfield, Stevens Point, Wausau and Wisconsin Rapids. It bears the name of the long-time president of the company.

The public tribute to the company is intended to call attention to the largest private gift of land for public wildlife use thus far received.

LURE TIPS FOR WINDY WATERS

USE SURFACE LURES ON CALM, SHELTERED WATER.

USE SINKING LURES CLOSE TO THE SHORE ON WIND-WHIPPED SIDE OF LAKE, POND OR QUARRY.

IN EARLY MORNING, FISH MAY RISE NEAR ANY SHORE WHERE WATER IS MIRROR-SMOOTH. AS BREEZES BEGIN TO RIPPLE THE SURFACE, FISH MOVE TO DEEPER WATER—THEN UNDERWATER LURES ARE USUALLY BEST. A SURFACE LURE (FLY, BUG, LIVE GRASSHOPPER OR PLUG) MAY BE VERY GOOD ON SHELTERED SIDE WHERE FISH WAIT FOR WIND TO DROP INSECTS, ETC.

Rules Take Effect Next Year

Conservation Department Will be In Charge of State Boating Code

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — If you own a boat, powered with motor or sail, you'll be required to do business with the state conservation department soon.

The conservation department will be administratively responsible for the application of the state's new boating code, which provides for the first time for a system of numbering of all boats, as well as the payment of license fees by their owners.

State License
The new act will be effective for the 1961 boating season.

The license payment will be $3.00 for a period of three years, with quantity discounts for operators of resorts and others who have boats in larger numbers. Perhaps 250,000 Wisconsin boat owners will be subject to the act, and the legislative history of the enactment suggests that not all of them will be pleased with its provisions.

Some of them were not ready to accept the idea of state licensing and regulation. Others protested certain sections of the law specifying boat traffic rules and equipment requirements. Others wanted the state code to supersede local regulatory ordinances.

Legislators wrestled for a long time with the various proposals, and finally emerged with a law that they expect to be the target of many amendments in future legislative sessions.

But the basic framework of state regulation will remain, the authors are sure, because of the increasing numbers of boats in use and the need for uniform standards and better enforcement of them.

The conservation department's wardens will be responsible for enforcing the new rules, which follow closely the model boating act approved in many other states and the federal boating code that applies to navigation in interstate waters.

Copies of New Law
One of the last requests to the legislature by the conservation department was a bill to authorize the printing of 10,000 additional copies of the new law. The legislature ignored the request, and now the department is preparing for a flood of inquiries from boat owners.

Some of the boat clubs' demands were defeated by the law-makers, including one that would have prohibited local boating ordinances, and another that would have removed boats from the local personal property tax rolls.

Big Game 'Bonus' In Fall Bear Hunt

Shooters Must Obtain Permit for Special Season Opening Sept. 19 In Block of 8 Northern Counties

BY JAY REED

Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

A bonus big game hunt opens for Wisconsin shooters Sept. 19 when bears, for the first time in recent history, become legal targets for gunners in a special season in a block of eight northern counties.

Special permits to hunt must be obtained from wardens or the state conservation department in Madison. The permits are required because another order of the commission prohibits the use of big game rifles from April 1 through Jan. 1 except during deer season.

The season will continue through Oct. 15 in these counties: Douglas, Bayfield, Washburn, Sawyer, Rusk, Ashland, Iron and Price. The bag limit will be one bear per hunter.

Damage Complaints
This department game manager says, is their answer to growing complaints of bear damage. Wardens Cliff Freeman, Ed Manthe and Edward Sealander, writing in the department's monthly bulletin, said bear damage claims in 1958 reached an all-time high. In Rusk and southern Sawyer counties, for instance, 56 bears were destroyed because they were doing damage of one kind or another. The majority of the animals were destroyed by game wardens.

Game managers have said they want hunters to take a greater share of the kill. In the past, wardens or other state employees have taken almost as many bears as have hunters.

Mid-November
The reason, of course, is the fact that bears, prior to this year, have been legal for gunners only during the normal state deer season. The animals, under ordinary conditions, are dened up by mid-November and those that are killed are driven from their places of hibernation.

In mid-September, however, the story is different. Bear activity reaches something of a peak as the animals move widely in search of food.

Historically, game managers have had to issue warnings to late summer tourists in northern Wisconsin to keep away from bears found at dumping areas.

Damage complaints are becoming a major headache for game people in the north, the department says. Each complaint is investigated and if it is determined that damage actually was done by a bear, the animal is shot or trapped and a fair financial settlement is made.

The department says the cost of running down and setting these claims, plus disposing of the animal, would run into thousands of dollars.

The special early season, it is hoped, will crop the bear population to the point where the complaints will become fewer and, consequently, far less costly.

Nebraska May Have Best Bird Season

Lincoln, Neb. — Some fabulous pheasant hunting, shades of the 1940's when the ring-neck had its heyday, is on tap for Nebraska this fall—if nature smiles her approval.

M. O. Steen, game commission director, said the state's breeding population shows a tremendous 75 per cent increase over last year and 143 per cent climb over 1957.

"Given good nesting success and brood survival," he continues, "we'll be loaded with birds."

The breeding population counts are based on the annual rural mail carrier's survey which has proven to be a reliable index. Approximately 700 mail carriers participated in the survey and traveled over 180,000 miles.

Spring survey data showed an average of 161 pheasants observed per 100 miles as compared to 9.49 in 1956 and 7.2 in 1957.

Wants Brief Comments on Rail Station

Editor, Post-Crescent:
Every thinking person recognizes that a dynamic and progressive newspaper plays an important role in the economic growth and well being of any town, city or area.
The editorial staff is universally recognized as an all-important segment of a successful and growing newspaper enterprise.
On the basis of your continued circulation growth and reader interest over the years, the Post-Crescent is certainly blessed with a fine staff.
A few brief comments, reflecting public opinion on the downtown railway station issue, as it affects or reflects on Appleton's business growth, pride and prestige of Appleton and its residents, would certainly be of tremendous reader interest.

Asks State Senator What He Would Cut

Editor, Post-Crescent:
Our legislature is now in recess until November for the primary purpose, I understand, of awaiting the report of the tax impact study and then, I hope, based on that, of enacting a sound and equitable tax structure to raise sufficient revenue for the state government to provide the needed and desired services for which its citizens clamor. Most of these services such as education, welfare work, highways and yes, conservation work, are essential to our high standard of living. Certainly government can provide them equally to all its citizens better and more economically than could the individual.
The costs of doing so have reason just as have the cost of running a farm, store or any business. Yet some of our legislators, notably Sen. William Draheim of Neenah, chairman of the joint finance committee of the legislature, according to news reports on page one of last Sunday's Milwaukee Journal, seem to think either that these services should not be provided, or that because government is doing it, costs somehow should not rise — this despite the fact that his salary and that of other legislators has risen 50 per cent besides a healthy increase in cost of living features during the last three years.
I think it is time we citizens knew what items of government service Sen. Draheim, and those who think as he does, want to eliminate in the name of economy. If the ability to pay is as important to them as they seem to indicate, I can not understand why they refused to endorse the withholding plan of paying income taxes. It is certainly easier for most of us to pay a burdensome amount in installments whether it is for a house, car, TV set or for schools and roads.
Let's let our legislators know during this recess how we feel — what should be cut out.
Herbert Pitz

Wisconsin practice also. Every Wisconsin governor of recent times has had on his payroll, or has tried to have, an experienced reporter. Some of them would have performed better had they succeeded in their recruiting. Morris Rubin once joined the staff of Philip F. LaFollette for about the same reasons that Bayley has left the city room for the statehouse — out of a desire to participate in the great game, and out of an affection for the man in office. Phil Drotning, one of the most likely young reporters who ever worked in the capitol, joined Walter J. Kohler and stayed longer than he intended for the same reasons of personal friendship.

Who says religion won't play a part in the 1960 campaign? Already Nixon is offering the prayer: "Will they love me in Dubuque as they do in Novosibirsk?"
Private enterprise on the move in communist Russia: Soviet censors removed 30 books from our Moscow exhibit, but Russian citizens managed to make off with 1,500.
Sen. Neuberger backs Stevenson for president. Neuberger's theory: Raw courage is needed in America's critical hour — no time for the Democrats to take the coward's way out by nominating a sure thing.
Ike dines a dozen Washington newsmen. Democrats think it's a splendid idea — and are mailing party membership applications to the 968 reporters who weren't invited.

Potomac Fever — by Fletcher Knebel

There were some eyebrows raised around the state when Bayley decided to join the Nelson staff at Madison.
But there are plenty of precedents. Candidates on the national scene wouldn't dream of launching a campaign without the assistance of the best newspaper veterans they can recruit. Political parties regard the publicist as second in importance only to the campaign treasurer.

Nelson Appointments Strengthen His 'Team'

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Gov. Nelson has considerably strengthened what he likes to call his "team" by the choice of Leonard Bessman as chairman of the public service commission and Edwin R. Bayley as his executive secretary.

Both men are outstanding choices, and there are a good number of close observers of affairs who were surprised that Nelson was able to recruit them for his state administration service.

Bessman is a lawyer of broad experience who has had previous acquaintance with the state government in the sensitive position of prosecuting anti-trust cases as a member of the state attorney general's staff. A man of striking humility and gentleness, he had the confidence of Republicans and Democrats during his previous work in the civil service. Those who recognize the difficulties in recruiting for such powerful and responsible and sensitive offices as the chairmanship of the top state regulatory agency will be relieved at the choice.

Parenthetically, there has been no quarrel about the performance of George Steinmetz, the retiring PSC chairman. He is a career man and will return to his old civil service rank. But Gov. Nelson was determined to make a change, presumably to assure administration of the commission in closer approximation of his own views on public utility practices and rates.

Gov. Nelson has built an executive office staff that quantitatively is considerably larger than that of his predecessors. The legislature has been tolerant enough in permitting him to enlarge the executive office entourage.

But it has not had the kind of quality in depth that a realistic political leader might desire. Most of all, it has lacked a man who is intimately acquainted with the political system and its practitioners.

The executive secretary to a governor, first of all, must know the names and numbers of the players, as the function is sometimes described.
There are few men who could come into Nelson's office with a background quite as useful in that connection than Ed Bayley, a seasoned political reporter who will also, whatever he and his friend Gov. Nelson may have intended, bring with him the prestige of his earlier employment and association.

Bayley has a steady head and hand that will be invaluable as time advances and the governor turns to the task of persuading the voters that his first term record entitles him to another election. He also has had that intimate exposure to state and local government, and state and local politicians, that comes to the professional reporter even more abundantly than it comes to the professional politician. The reporter goes everywhere, sees everybody. The professional politician is unlimited by his partisan position.

Castle on the Clouds

I am sitting on the hill top
Where I often sit and dream
Where I often go to ponder
High above the racing stream

As I ponder I look upward
And in fancy I can see
Many things that I have dreamed of
In the clouds that onward flee

There are wondrous golden cities
People as of long ago
There are trees and hills and valleys
And the trees wave to and fro

There are seas and ships and islands
But the sights that hold me fast
Are what seem like grand old castles
Out of pages of the past

There is one away off yonder
High up on the mountain side
I can see the knights in armor
Ready to defend their pride

There's another drifting slowly
All its battlements aglow
All its turrets bristling gaily
Like the sun upon the snow

And the clouds keep drifting drifting
Passing on in grand review
While I watch in silent wonder
Till they wave to me "adieu"

Odd Fellows Lodge in Kaukauna

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of July 31, 1880.

On Friday last, W. W. Wilson, D.D. G.M. of this district, assisted by a delegation of Odd Fellows from Appleton, instituted a lodge of Odd Fellows in the flourishing village of Kaukauna under the most flattering and promising circumstances.

Hon. J. V. Jones of Oshkosh assisted the deputy in instituting the lodge. At "high twelve" (midnight), the visiting brethren were called to refreshment, a bountiful supper being spread before them.

Eight persons were initiated, the entire degree work gone through with and the officers installed. Thus the lodge starts out with 14 members, without a dollar of indebtedness and with the prospect of having 30 good and true members by next Jan. 1.

The following is a list of officers of the lodge:

T. M. Kellogg, N.G.; A. E. Harper, V.G.; C.C. Greene, secretary; J. King, treasurer; W. A. Doan, W.; J. Claspill, C.; James Hamilton, R.S. N.G.; J. Rought, L.S. N.G.; A. Allen, R.S. V.G.; A. Lambie, L.S. V.G.; J. Costello, R.S. S.M.; M. Wisner, S.S.S.; H. Johnston, I.G.; J. Hamilton, O.G.

Frank Young, county superintendent of schools, was guest speaker at the meeting of the Kau-Free 4-H club.

Ten delegates were to represent Appleton Elks club at the state convention at Manitowoc, Aug. 16 to 19, according to Sario Balliet, secretary. The delegates were D. R. Morrissey, W. C. Jacobson, Jay Bushey, Chester Heinritz, Ray Stark, E. C. Otto, Reno Clark, A. A. Gritzmacher, A. S. Bradford and Mr. Balliet.

About 40 members of Troop 1, St. Joseph scout unit, were to leave Sunday afternoon for a week's stay at Valley council camp, Gardner dam. Al Stoegbauer, scoutmaster, and Andrew Heinemann and Ed Witte, assistant scoutmasters, were to accompany the troop.

Grocery stores and meat markets in Kaukauna were to close at noon next Tuesday while grocers and meat dealers went to High Cliff park to hold their annual outing and picnic. The committee in charge included N. M. Haupt, William Hass, E. A. Kalupa, E. Steinacker, John Corcoran, Henry Minkebig and Frank Balgie.

The finance committee was to recommend to the common council Wednesday night that the Appleton board of education be granted permission to engage an architect to design the new Franklin elementary school.

The Appleton Board of Health met with Elmer Rehben, secretary of the meat dealers' association, and two other city meat dealers to discuss a proposed ordinance requiring the inspection of all meat sold in Appleton.
Two graduates of Lawrence college conservatory of music were awarded master of music degrees at the recent 88th commencement at the University of Rochester, Rochester, N. Y. Both did their graduate work at the Eastman School of Music at the university. They were Harold R. Green and Robert J. Barnes, Jr., both of Appleton.

Rosemary Schwebbs, Menasha, won the inter-state low board diving championship of the Minneapolis aquatennial and was to compete in the Wisconsin AAC contest at Milwaukee.

The Railway Station Issue

Ald. Tucker, in the People's Forum today, asks for comment on "the downtown railway station issue, as it affects or reflects on Appleton's business growth, pride and prestige." While we have done this before, the subject apparently is one of continuing interest and we are glad to make known our feelings.

The basic fact about railway passenger service today is that it is a losing proposition for the railroads. This is so practically everywhere. In fact, the officers of several eastern roads, such as the Pennsylvania and the New York Central, make no secret of their desire to eliminate passenger service altogether. Other railroad executives are more cautious in their public statements but it is obvious that the annual deficits run up by their passenger departments present them with grave problems.

Thus passenger service today is not something that is important to the railroads, except as a worrisome problem. On the other hand, it is very important to communities of all shapes and sizes. The little towns have either lost it already or are going to lose it; this seems inevitable. The big metropolitan centers either can supply enough business so the railroads will voluntarily continue to serve them or they can wield enough political power to keep the trains running. The great question mark, as we see it, is the future of railroad passenger service to the medium-sized communities, a class into which the Fox Cities fall.

Despite the tremendous increase in the use of airplanes, buses and private automobiles, railroad passenger service still is very important to us. If anyone doubts this let him go down to the Junction when either the morning or evening "400" is loading up and he will see how many people still depend on this service for their traveling needs. Furthermore, the Fox Cities are blessed with service that is considerably better than that received by most communities our size: the most modern passenger equipment in service today is on this run and we have faster, more convenient schedules to Milwaukee and Chicago than almost any community of our size in the country to its nearby metropolitan centers.

There is an interesting contrast in the attitudes of the public toward railroads and toward other forms of public transportation. We build expensive airports, with modern and sometimes even lush terminal buildings, at taxpayers' expense for the convenience of the airlines. We use other tax monies to provide broad, smooth highways for buses, trucks and passenger cars. Yet we not only expect the railroads to provide all their own right-of-way and terminal facilities but we expect them to pay taxes on these facilities as well, and we become very irritated if a train blocks a crossing for more than a few minutes. With this kind of a public attitude it is small wonder that the railroads' passenger service has become increasingly a loss operation, and one the railroads would be just as happy to do without.

Would it be better for Appleton to have the trains stop downtown, rather than at the Junction? Yes, we think so. Is the Junction depot a poor advertisement for our community, and do the people of this community feel a blow to their pride when they must board and alight from trains at that unattractive spot? Again, we think the answer is yes. But our point is that it is rather unrealistic to expect the railroad company to spend extra money to provide us with this extra convenience to save our pride, in view of the fact that the passenger business is a losing proposition. Railroad companies, like any one else, do not like to throw good money after bad.

If the people of Appleton really feel that a downtown railway depot is important to this community, we suggest that the city take over the site and either rehabilitate the old depot or tear it down and build a new new one there. We realize that this is a somewhat radical proposition, and we do not expect our office to be deluged with taxpayers coming in to congratulate us on it. Yet if Appleton really wants a modern downtown passenger depot we think that is the only way it is going to get one.

The Presidential Primary

Although Wisconsin has a very unsatisfactory presidential preference primary law, the legislature has adjourned without doing anything about it and therefore the state will have to struggle through the next presidential primary without any change in its position.

Since Wisconsin is only one of 15 states that hold such primaries, it does figure prominently in the early jousting among candidates. However, it has proved in the past to be more or less a tool of candidates and not of the people of Wisconsin. In fact the people of Wisconsin have very little to say about which candidate shall appear in the Wisconsin primary. Those who find it to their advantage to do so may enter, and those who think it would be to their disadvantage may ignore it. The result is that the people of Wisconsin have no opportunity to express their opinion about many of the candidates in the primaries. Thus it often happens that those winning a large vote in Wisconsin fall on a national scale and are not prominent at all in the national conventions.

Oregon, another of the 15 states with presidential primaries, finds itself in somewhat the same position. It appears now that a woman politician who has changed her mind once so far in the preliminary skirmishing in that state and who may change it again before primary election day, May 10, may have more to say about the outcome of the Oregon primary than the people of Oregon.

We are referring here to Mrs. Sylvia Nemer of Portland who gained some prominence because of her successful management of Adlai Stevenson's campaign in Oregon in 1956. Sens. Humphrey of Minnesota and Kennedy of Massachusetts, who who are now jockeying for position in the Wisconsin primary, also have an eye out for possible gains to be made in the Oregon primary. Back in May supporters of Sen. Humphrey sent an agent into Oregon to find a campaign manager for the senator if he should enter the Oregon primary. He succeeded in signing up Mrs. Nemer and so reported to the Humphrey camp. No doubt the Humphrey supporters were elated to have this woman of experience and prominence sign up for the campaign. But their joy was short-lived, for about a month later Mrs. Nemer announced that she had decided to work for Sen. Kennedy instead.

Now, of course, it is the Kennedy forces' turn to be elated over success in Oregon, for Mrs. Nemer is said to be a close personal and political friend of Rep. Edith Green (D-Portland) who in turn is said to have important connections in liberal and labor groups and with Sen. Wayne Morse. How much this counts for, of course, we do not know, but there are Democrats in Oregon who say privately that they doubt whether Mrs. Nemer's influence is as great as the rival candidates have been led to believe.

In the meantime the primary may not be left to Sens. Humphrey and Kennedy, for Rep. Charles O. Porter, also an Oregon Democrat, declares that he is going to put Stevenson's name in the Oregon primary with or without his permission. He can do this by merely getting 1,000 voters to sign a petition to have a name entered. When a name is entered in this manner the candidate cannot withdraw. Thus there is the possibility that Stevenson's name will be on the ballot, and who knows where Mrs. Nemer will be? Since she had such good luck with the Stevenson campaign in 1956 she may have a yearning to go back to her first candidate. She has changed her mind only once so far in this campaign so she is certainly entitled to do so again by all the rules of politics and feminine psychology.

Lobbying at Madison

One thing that appears to have stood up well during the recent legislative session is the Thomson law against illegal lobbying. When former Gov. Thomson drew his law against high pressure lobbying at Madison there were many who thought such legislation would merely drive the lobbyists underground. It was a little difficult to see how a law could be enforced against such things as buying a drink for a legislator, especially since at the time the law was drawn it appeared that a great majority of the legislators were heartily in favor of accepting free meals and free drinks from the representatives of organizations interested in legislation.

The other day Assemblyman Keith Hardie (D-Taylor) said he would not sign a complaint alleging lobby law violation against the person he had recently accused of offering to pay for a dinner for his Assembly Education committee. Hardie says that now, as he looks back on the incident, it appears that the statement "might very well have been made in jest." Hardie says he didn't take the statement as a jest at the time but now he would rather give the gentleman the benefit of the doubt than to commence a proceeding that would "permanently injure his reputation."

It is a fact, as Hardie says, that his charge was made in the heat of debate over a highly controversial bill. It came at a time when Hardie was grasping for any sort of argument to win for his side. While it may be considered very friendly of him to think now of the lobbyist's reputation, he should know that he has done his own reputation no good by seizing on this statement, that might have been made in jest, to support his position.

It appears that he was willing to smear the reputations of the entire corps of lobbyists and some of his fellow legislators in order to win an argument, but he has now made a clean breast of the affair and thus should be forgiven. But the public should note that as far as the record goes there has been no illegal lobbying at Madison during the recent legislative session.

Speaker George Molinaro (D-Kenosha) earlier in the session raised a storm over reports of illegal lobbying but that also was quickly dropped without any investigation. Thus it appears that one of the legacies to the state by the former governor, Vernon Thomson, is that of a successful lobby-regulating law. That is a very important matter and may in the future be recognized as one of the things that makes Wisconsin outstanding in its handling of legislation.

Lawrence Says:
Settlement of
Strike to Affect
Whole Nation
Government Must
Become Involved,
Union Chief Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Do the American people want a regulated economy — with the government fixing wages and prices? David J. McDonald, head of the Steelworkers union, said today that the answer comes close to saying, "yes."

This would be one step removed from socialism, he declared, but the government "cannot help but get involved" in the steel strike and adds: "We have always welcomed the involvement of government."

As for the steel companies, they recognize the possibility, too, but are vehemently opposed to it, believing that free enterprise thrives under a free system of bargaining. Roger M. Blough, chairman of the board of U.S. Steel corporation, has just announced: "Whatever the length of the strike, and whatever the eventual outcome of the negotiations — as long as they are voluntary — we in United States Steel do not intend to raise the general level of our steel prices in the foreseeable future."

Without Pressure
Blough said also that his company intended to adhere to that pledge "in the absence of an involuntary settlement mandated by some public body or authority."

This, of course, refers to government pressure or mandate of law.

Naturally, labor-union leaders in the past have counted on their political influence in government to give them what they want. They are counting today on help from members of congress to bring pressure on the White House to intervene and force a settlement of the steel strike in their favor.

The promise by the steel industry not to raise prices is a wise move. It doesn't mean the door is closed to any wage increase. It means, conversely, that whatever wage rise is given can be absorbed without a price increase.

Way Inflation Starts
Much has been said by the union spokesmen in the last few days about the size of the profits which steel companies now are revealed to have earned in the first six months of this year. The argument from the union side is that wages can be increased because of such profits. But this is exactly how inflationary spirals begin. The erroneous assumption is that a rate of profits continues indefinitely.

Unfortunately for the steel companies, if they suffer a reverse, union labor will not share in the losses. Wages are almost never reduced. Profits are looked upon by the labor unions as having been earned by their members.

It seems to be forgotten that the stockholders' and creditors' money, which makes possible new and remodeled plants with up-to-date equipment, is usually responsible for the increased profits. Dividends and interest are wages, too.

But, in this instance, it was the fear of a steel strike, which became widespread more than a year ago, that gave the steel companies twice as many orders as they would normally have had for the same period.

But if wage rates are to be based on such an artificial situation, what is to happen when orders decline and buyers begin to cut down inventories as soon as they are assured of a steady supply after the strike is ended?

Demand Unfair Profits
The unions contribute none of the management skill or energy, none of the sales ability, none of the technical knowledge that makes a big industrial company function successfully. Yet they demand that they be given a share of the profits over and above a just wage. They are unwilling to abolish "featherbedding" and waste but insist on a continuance of such subsidies.

If government were to control and if profits and wages were regulated by public authority, there soon would be no right to strike. Certainly the opportunities of a big union, through a strike threat or work stoppage, to extort a portion of the profits without assuming any responsibility for the sales or the earnings

Mary Le Capitaine and Billy Berholtz were just two of the youngsters enjoying themselves Thursday night when a rock and roll band played at Erb park. The band appearance was a special feature in the summer playground program.

The Law and You

Courts Don't Like to Give
Opinions Just for Advice

Our system of justice rests upon the "adversary" theory of a trial where both sides fight for real stakes in dead earnest. Although many other persons, as well as the general public, may be directly affected by the result of a lawsuit which makes new law applicable to them, the lawsuit itself is between the parties to it.

Our U. S. supreme court, for example, will not give an "advisory" opinion to anybody — neither the president nor congress — as to whether a proposed law would be constitutional. The court decides that would be done away with if the government took over.

There is, to be sure, no justification for anybody on either side to take a narrow view of the steel controversy. It isn't simply a matter of profits or wage rates within a single industry. Steel is the bellwether of the entire economy. If steel wages go up, wages in other industries will also go up. Then the price of the things the steel companies buy will go up, too, and costs are thus pyramided.

The whole nation will be affected by the kind of settlement reached in the steel strike. If government intervenes to force a settlement favorable to the unions and unfavorable to the wage-price structure of the nation, the administration or party which brings about such a result will have to take full responsibility for another cycle of inflation. Hawaii Casts Record
Vote in 1st Election

Honolulu — (U) — Hawaiians cast a record 170,119 votes in their first state election Tuesday.

The old mark was 154,329, set last November. The Tuesday figure was 93 per cent of Hawaii's 182,987 registrants, the official tabulation showed Thursday. The previous percentage record was 89.3 in the 1956 general election.

Cuba May
Boycott
Conference

Washington—Cuba may boycott the western hemisphere foreign ministers conference opening Aug. 12 in Santiago, Chile.

It is angry that the Organization of American States (OAS) has rejected its move to provide specifically that the foreign ministers discuss economic underdevelopment as a cause of political instability.

The OAS council voted down the proposal in a 4-hour meeting Thursday night, at which it approved the agenda for the conference. Some members suggested economic matters could be discussed under another part of the agenda.

Nations Favor
Eight nations favored Cuba's proposal, four opposed it, and nine nations abstained in the voting. A majority of 11 votes was required for approval.

Immediately after the vote, Cuban ambassador Dr. Levi Marrero said Cuba's revolutionary government will have to study the possibility of being represented in Santiago.

The ministers are scheduled to consider international tension in the Caribbean area. They also — according to the agenda approved last night — will discuss the effective exercise of representative democracy, and respect for human rights.

Last 10 Days
An immediate result of the meeting — expected to last about 10 days — may be a concrete step to curb further armed invasions in the Caribbean.

Since late April, Panama, Nicaragua and the Dominican Republic all have been invaded by would-be revolutionaries. Cubans have been linked to all three of the attempts.

Can you imagine pouring turpentine on an open cut? This was the favorite way to prevent lock-jaw some years ago.

Naturally, we wouldn't think of doing this now. But then, we're lucky. We have tetanus toxoids and antitoxins.

Thanks to medical science, lockjaw need no longer be a killer ... previously, death occurred in 90% of the cases. Children, because of their affinity for cuts, sometimes pick up the tetanus germ. So, if there are young children in your family, be sure to ask your physician about pre-ventive tetanus shots.

It's always wise to seek your doctor's advice before using any medicines. And next time you have a prescription to be filled, think of us.

Lawrence Says:
Settlement of
Strike to Affect
Whole Nation
Government Must
Become Involved,
Union Chief Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Do the American people want a regulated economy — with the government fixing wages and prices? David J. McDonald, head of the Steelworkers union, said in a radio address that the government "cannot help but get involved" in the steel strike and added: "We have always welcomed the involvement of government."

As for the steel companies, they recognize the possibility, too, but are vehemently opposed to it, believing that free enterprise thrives under a free system of bargaining. Roger M. Blough, chairman of the board of U.S. Steel corporation, has just announced: "Whatever the length of the strike, and whatever the eventual outcome of the negotiations — as long as they are voluntary — we in United States Steel do not intend to raise the general level of our steel prices in the foreseeable future."

Without Pressure Blough said also that his company intended to adhere to that pledge "in the absence of an involuntary settlement mandated by some public body or authority."

This, of course, refers to government pressure or mandate of law.

Naturally, labor-union leaders in the past have counted on their political influence in government to give them what they want. They are counting today on help from members of congress to bring pressure on the White House to intervene and force a settlement of the steel strike in their favor.

The promise by the steel industry not to raise prices is a wise move. It doesn't mean the door is closed to any wage increase. It means, conversely, that whatever wage rise is given can be absorbed without a price increase.

Way Inflation Starts Much has been said by the union spokesmen in the last few days about the size of the profits which steel companies now are revealed to have earned in the first six months of this year. The argument from the union side is that wages can be increased because of such profits. But this is exactly how inflationary spirals begin. The erroneous assumption is that a rate of profits continues indefinitely.

Unfortunately for the steel companies, if they suffer a reverse, union labor will not share in the losses. Wages are almost never reduced. Profits are looked upon by the labor unions as having been earned by their members.

It seems to be forgotten that the stockholders' and creditors' money, which makes possible new and re-modeled plants with up-to-date equipment, is usually responsible for the increased profits. Dividends and interest are wages, too.

But, in this instance, it was the fear of a steel strike, which became widespread more than a year ago, that gave the steel companies twice as many orders as they would normally have had for the same period.

But if wage rates are to be based on such an artificial situation, what is to happen when orders decline and buyers begin to cut down inventories as soon as they are assured of a steady supply after the strike is ended?

Demand Unfair Profits The unions contribute none of the management skill or energy, none of the sales ability, none of the technical knowledge that makes a big industrial company function successfully. Yet they demand that they be given a share of the profits over and above a just wage. They are unwilling to abolish "featherbedding" and waste but insist on a continuance of such subsidies.

If government were to control and if profits and wages were regulated by public authority, there soon would be no right to strike. Certainly the opportunities of a big union, through a strike threat or work stoppage, to extort a portion of the profits without assuming any responsibility for the sales or the earnings

Mary Le Capitaine and Billy Berholtz were just two of the youngsters enjoying themselves Thursday night when a rock and roll band played at Erb park. The band appearance was a special feature in the summer playground program.

The Law and You

Courts Don't Like to Give
Opinions Just for Advice

Our system of justice rests upon the "adversary" theory of a trial where both sides fight for real stakes in dead earnest. Although many other persons, as well as the general public, may be directly affected by the result of a lawsuit which makes new law applicable to them, the lawsuit itself is between the parties to it.

Our U. S. supreme court, for example, will not give an "advisory" opinion to anybody — neither the president nor congress — as to whether a proposed law would be constitutional. The court decides that would be done away with if the government took over.

There is, to be sure, no justification for anybody on either side to take a narrow view of the steel controversy. It isn't simply a matter of profits or wage rates within a single industry. Steel is the bellwether of the entire economy. If steel wages go up, wages in other industries will also go up. Then the price of the things the steel companies buy will go up, too, and costs are thus pyramided.

The whole nation will be affected by the kind of settlement reached in the steel strike. If government intervenes to force a settlement favorable to the unions and unfavorable to the wage-price structure of the nation, the administration or party which brings about such a result will have to take full responsibility for another cycle of inflation. Hawaii Casts Record

Honolulu — (U) — Hawaiians cast a record 170,119 votes in their first state election Tuesday.

The old mark was 154,329, set last November. The Tuesday figure was 93 per cent of Hawaii's 182,987 registrants, the official tabulation showed Thursday. The previous percentage record was 89.3 in the 1956 general election.

Cuba May
Boycott
Conference

Washington — (U) — Cuba may boycott the western hemisphere foreign ministers conference opening Aug. 12 in Santiago, Chile.

It is angry that the Organization of American States (OAS) has rejected its move to provide specifically that the foreign ministers discuss economic underdevelopment as a cause of political instability.

The OAS council voted down the proposal in a 4-hour meeting Thursday night, at which it approved the agenda for the conference. Some members suggested economic matters could be discussed under another part of the agenda.

Nations Favor Eight nations favored Cuba's proposal, four opposed it, and nine nations abstained in the voting. A majority of 11 votes was required for approval.

Immediately after the vote, Cuban ambassador Dr. Levi Marrero said Cuba's revolutionary government will have to restudy the possibility of being represented in Santiago.

The ministers are scheduled to consider international tension in the Caribbean area. They also — according to the agenda approved last night — will discuss the effective exercise of representative democracy, and respect for human rights.

Last 10 Days An immediate result of the meeting — expected to last about 10 days — may be a concrete step to curb further armed invasions in the Caribbean.

Since late April, Panama, Nicaragua and the Dominican Republic all have been invaded by would-be revolutionaries. Cubans have been linked to all three of the attempts.

"28 Years in Hair"
Nationally Known Scalp Specialist Returns To

Consultation Private and Free
HOURS: 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The Yost hair culture system is the development of Edwin G. Yost, scalp specialist of 28 years of experience. It is a easy, practical home-treatment based on knowledge, experience and "know how" in hair.

Unintentionally we invite thinning hair by neglecting to give the scalp that bit of care necessary for normal hair growth. Normal hair grows about 12 inches in 4 years, is then shed and replaced by another hair which goes through the same life cycle if the scalp is healthy.

The road to thinning hair and finally hopeless baldness is well marked by abnormal hair loss—especially short hair loss, itching in some cases, dryness, various forms of dandruff, etc. Need these warnings. Act now! Treatment is brief three minutes daily and you'll enjoy it as you see the results in faster, longer, thicker hair growth. The cost is about $2.50 per month. Duration of treatment depends upon the present condition of your hair. Consultation is in private and free—no obligation. Come in and see what you can do about your hair problems now.

CONSULTATION PRIVATE — NO OBLIGATION

Fat Free Frying Method Is New Modern Miracle on Market

Golden brown chops, fried without a drop of fat! Crisp, tender eggs, with no more calories than raw or soft boiled eggs! Casserole dishes made without butter, yet you can remove them from your pans easily with no sticking. All these and more are possible at last because of Pam Dry Fry, new fat free cooking aid.

Pam Dry Fry, which has been accepted for advertising by the Journal of the American Medical Association, comes in a handy, pushbutton container and is easily applied by simply spraying a thin coating on broiler, skillet, roaster, or any cooking surface.

memorable exception.

Emphasizing that drinking coffee black is the truest test of its flavor, each individual advertisement reassures cream and sugar users with: "It stands to reason that if Butter-Nut tastes best black, it tastes best your way too." What is the key to Butter-Nut's ability to win and hold loyal users? According to firm officials, it's the special blend of 48 different coffees that go into Butter-Nut.

Swim In Your Own Back Yard is the trend today and the kidney-shaped pool shown above is only one of many styles that can be yours this summer for many hours of cool relaxation. Water Conditioners, 1331 W. Wisconsin avenue will give you a free estimate. Phone numbers are RE 3-2690 for the office, Robert Swaby at RE 3-4290, or Bernard Burba at PA 5-1886.

Many times stronger than steel or concrete is the spray-on fiber glass swimming pool shown above. This is the latest improvement in swimming pool construction. The fiber glass pool is built on the site and made all in one piece with no seams to leak. It will never crack or need painting and is guaranteed for three years.

Have fun in your own back yard swimming pool this year. Call Water Conditioners, 1331 W. Wisconsin avenue, and get a free estimate.

At the turn of the century, memorial work is no longer done most memorials or monuments were still being made with a chisel. The first cut of marble, but because of its resistance to weathering, granite is being used today, almost exclusively.

The Appleton Marble and Granite works had its humble beginnings in 1895 when they operated on the west end of College avenue under the name of Fox River Valley Stone works. The move to Lawe street and the new name came with a merger in 1905.

A third change is that memorials, make arrangements for their burial plat and memorial while they live. This foresight is commendable because the survivors are relieved of this important decision.

Appleton M. and G. reminds that it is not too early to make arrangements for pre-winter setting of monuments. Many pieces are not always available in stock and must be ordered from distant quarries. They promise artistic craftsmanship as well as satisfactory installation.

Many people, the firm states, make arrangements

A Black Eye Is Troubling Domestic Heating Service, division of Tschank & Christensen, 423 W. College avenue. The men and trucks shown above are ready to serve you around the clock, Domestic claims. Phone number is RE 3-4965.

There is something funny about a black eye, but not to the wearer. The figurative type that somebody hangs on to a reputation takes a long time to fade away. Bob Christensen of Domestic Heating Service division of Tschank & Christensen says the furnace repair business has such a black eye. It was put there by the people who make a racket of the furnace repair business. "The great majority of us who run an honest operation get the shiner by a so called," Christensen said. The Ideal Season To Wear Flowers, to give flowers, to fill your home with beautiful flowers every day is now! Summer flowers are in the shop at Memorial Drive Florists in great abundance — cool, colorful, fragrant and easy on the budget. Phone at Memorial Drive Florists is RE 3-4678.

Memorial Drive gives you tips on more hours for cut flowers. They say you'll receive a dividend of longer flower life when you give your flower bouquets simple care during heat-filled summer days. Check the water supply on all flowers you receive already arranged. These are often delivered with a minimum of water to prevent spillage. Add and check the water daily because in hot weather water evaporates quickly. For flowers you arrange yourself, always re-cut the stems to allow a thorough water flow to the blooms. Remove excess leaves below the water line. These deteriorate rapidly if submerged, cloud the water and shorten the life of an arrangement. Add a cut of flower preservative to the water and by all means, use clean containers. These should be scoured to remove any crusty deposits from previous arrangements. For narrow-necked containers, swirl a handful of sand, pebbles or rice around in the water to dislodge any film. Keep your arrangements out of direct sunlight and in the evening place them in a cool spot on the floor or cover them with a nest of dampened newspapers. And remember, tall massive arrangements tend to end up as floating florets for more enjoyment.

Rocketteller Romance Keeps People Guessing

Kristiansand, Norway—(AP)—Anne Marie Rasmussen's pastor says the pretty blonde sought his advice about marrying Steven Rocketteller, 23-year-old son of New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. The Rev. Olaf Gaustestad told newsmen, "No definite marriage plans have been made," but added that he may have something further to say about the couple Monday. The Lutheran minister denied reports that he would make an important announcement in church Sunday. Steven and Anne Marie kept everyone guessing about their intentions. Young Rocketteller met the 23-year-old Norwegian girl when she worked as maid for his family in New York. He hurried here to see her again upon completing his six months military service in the U. S. Army reserves a few weeks ago. They have been a steady twosome ever since, taking trips about the countryside on a 2-wheel motorcycle. Steven said yesterday he intends to remain in Norway for another two or three weeks and then may take a trip with Anne Marie through Europe before returning to the United States.

Our Children
Naughty Acts Should Be Dealt With at Once

BY ANGELO PATRI
In dealing with the annoyances of children, and one can be so easily annoyed. It is best to leave oneself an Out. It is easy to place oneself in a very embarrassing position by issuing decrees. As one might have heard, life's ways are various and uncertain and decrees, being very firm, sometimes fail to fit the occasion. "Look here. The next time you do anything like this you'll stay home when we go on the next trip." This is said with great force, backed by indignation. "Something must be done to stop this kind of thing. Must be nipped in the bud. Right now at the start. The very idea!" — On and on. Something happens and a trip is in the offing. A very pleasant one indeed but one member of the family is away, the one who ordinarily would be at home, trip or no trip. The "young man" cannot be left at home alone. If the trip is postponed he will not be punished. His parents will be and they can't see that. So the "young man" goes along, thinking long thoughts about the maybe's of life. Sometimes indignation at a child's waywardness rouses anger and he is told, "The next time anything like this happens you'll get a spanking." It happens but at the time the house is full of visiting relatives, mother is very busy and father is in a genial mood so the culprit gets away with it. And he learns that when there is company, threats go unfulfilled. That might be just as well but the effect on the youngster is not good. Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.) (Copyright 1959)

Deal With On Spot

It is best to deal with the children's wayward acts on the spot. Then go on from there. If there must be talk about the next time leave an Out to save face, to consider the circumstances. Once a small boy managed to get himself thoroughly drenched by getting under the sprinkler. He was dressed and ready to go to church and had to be undressed, redressed, and so kept the whole family late for service. "If ever you come into the house soaked like this you'll get a good spanking. Believe me." The next time he was soaked he happened to be caught in a heavy rain on the way home. He was afraid to go into the house and so got an extra soaking. It is always best to leave

To Your Good Health

Reader Asks Molner How to Control Being Frightened

By Joseph G. Molner, M. D.
"Dear Dr. Molner: Do you have any literature on 'How to overcome fear.' I am in need of having some dental work done, and am frightened. How can I overcome this?—M. O." I'm going to confess, at the outset, that there are times when any physician is hard put to find an answer. This, from my reading and conversations, I know to be true of men whose scientific learning and psychological acumen are greater than I would ever hope to have. Much as we have learned about healing and nature, we know there are many things we cannot understand, and the greatest mystery of all is the question of what the difference is between mere chemicals and the beautiful, baffling, mysterious but real thing we call "life." It is just such a question that M. O. asks: "How do you overcome fear?" "I am not at all sure that we ought to 'overcome fear,' or that we are intended to do so by that Higher Power. To me, there has never been any indication that living creatures can survive without fear. Flowers turn toward the light—and by that same action might be said to 'fear' shade or dark. A puppy dog draws back in 'fear' at a sudden noise, a threatening hand. Human beings and animals fear a sudden noise, or something hot, or cold. Anything painful. Far be it from me to guess how much is instinct, how much is reason, how much is experience. But I know, and you know, that it is natural and useful and indeed necessary to be cautious. Actors Feel Nervous I have known actors who, after decades on the stage, still always feel nervous before an appearance on the stage—nervousness to the degree of nausea. Many athletes have "butterflies in their stomach" until the whistle starts the game. Some soldiers who have won the Congressional Medal of Honor do not hesitate to say they were terrified as they waited to go into action. The bravest know fear. And from the evidence I think fear is a useful thing. Without it we might soon perish. The problem isn't to overcome fear, but to use your reasoning sense whenever you feel fear. Is it something that deserves concern? M. O.'s problem, I gather, is fear of pain. When I was a boy, going to the dentist usually hurt like the mischief. You don't forget the things you learn while young. But at the same time I've learned since that dentistry has developed marvelously. Faster, keener drills which cut delicately instead of requiring pressure have reduced the pain immeasurably. The same is true for extractions. Use of local anesthetic, when really sensitive areas of a tooth are touched, take the agony out of dentistry. It takes some unlearning to realize how much difference there is in dental care. It's tremendous. And realizing the truth of this is the best way I know of overcoming the fear of dentistry that so many of us acquired when we were little. Commoner in Women "Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor tells me I have trichomonas infection. He says both men and women can have it. If I'm cured, couldn't my husband infect me again?" Yes—if he harbors the same infection, which is caused by a microscopic organism called a protozoan. (Pronounced Pro-toe-zoe-ahn.) It is much commoner in women than in men, so if you get it cleared up, that could be the end of it. Whether you can get it from your husband depends on whether he has it. It's an entirely innocent sort

Yves Saint Laurent, successor to Parish fashion designer, Christian Dior, gets a kiss from Mrs. Alex Liebermann of New York, wife of a magazine publisher, after his fashion premieres of autumn and winter styles in the French capital. The youthful Saint Laurent, sole supporter of front view, knee-high hems, appeared to be out on a limb as the rest of the French high fashion world showed skirts reaching the top of the calf.

Summer Opportunity for Parents to Enjoy Children

Parents are familiar with a scrapbook. Or they may that old question, "What can I do now?" and they are constantly on the lookout for ideas to provide interesting summer activities for their children. Mrs. Millicent Martin, University of Illinois child development specialist, has suggestions for these parents, and she adds that many of them can be enjoyed the year-round. Children always enjoy cutting and pasting, so they may want to cut pictures from magazines and paste them in of thing—nothing for anyone to feel guilty about. Tonsil Trouble Note to Mrs. B. R.: No, I don't think there's a particle of evidence to indicate that acute tonsillitis has anything to do with cancer. Forget about the cancer; watch out for those repeated attacks of tonsil trouble. A thick board, a real hammer and some nails will make a miniature carpenter of any child. He'll have a lot of fun pounding and may even cover the entire board with nails. Of course, this activity must be carefully supervised because hammers cannot be used to pound just anything. And don't forget summer birthdays, picnics and tea parties, walks and drives or just listening to music or stories. Mrs. Martin says that activities for children take planning and imagination, and you cannot expect perfection — it should be a learning process. But, above all, enjoy your children and have fun with them.

Traffic Accidents Took 100 Lives Daily During 1958

Chicago — Traffic accidents took an average of more than 100 lives a day in 1958, according to the National Safety Council. Most deadly day, the council said in its recently published statistical yearbook, "Accident Facts," was Saturday. Sunday was next most dangerous to motorists. ing enthusiasts. A new food freezer that is really an innovation has been developed. It is completely frost-proof. All messy defrosting is completely eliminated, along with ice-locked packages and frost showering the floor every time an item is removed. You can remove the packages, too, because packages never frost over. Best of all, storage space in these new 16-cubic-foot food freezers is always usable. There's no space-robbing frost cones to displace food packages, regardless how long the unit operates. And you can lose as much as a whole cubic foot, enough to store 75 commercial packages, in a conventional model of the same size with one-half inch of frost inside.

New Peaches

The home economics direct- or also pointed out that new varieties of peaches, which will not discolor when exposed to the air, have been developed and will be appearing on the market soon. On the lighter side, but no less important to the younger set, are summertime refreshments. Here are two ideas suggested by Miss Huck. "Ice Cream Bouquets" can be made quickly and easily. Simply spoon any flavor ice cream into flat bottomed cones. Sprinkle with chocolate crumbs, then package in freezer wrapping material and seal. Then when the gang comes to the house, you can remove a sufficient quantity of cones from the freezer and make up the bouquets by sticking small gumdrops on toothpicks. You can arrange them in flower clusters, then set the toothpicks firmly into the ice cream before serving.

Ice Cream Dish

Another favorite is "Mickey Mouse" ice cream servings. To create "Mickey Mouse," use a dipper of ice cream as the head and attach peppermint patties for the ears, cinnamon drops and chocolate bits for his eyes, nose and mouth. Overwrap and store in the freezer until you need them. To serve, remove wrapping and set head on three chocolate cookies which form the collar. And here's some other important news from Miss Huck of interest to all home freez-

Home Economist Gives Fruit Freezing Tips

Summer time is freezing time, especially for fruits and refreshments, so here are some helpful hints that will assure best results as well as the most fun. When freezing fruits you will discover some, such as peaches, have a tendency to draken and spoil the appearance. According to Miss Mary Huck, home economics director for an appliance firm, this problem can be solved by adding ascorbic acid to the syrup before combining with the fruit. This also helps prevent fruit from turning brown during the thawing process. To use ascorbic acid in sirup, add 1 teaspoon of powdered ascorbic acid to 5 cups of chilled sirup, made by combining 3 cups of granulated sugar and 4 cups of cold water. When packaging fruit with dry sugar, work with small amounts at a time, suggests Miss Huck. Dissolve 1 teaspoon of ascorbic acid in 4 teaspoons of cold water. Add 2 teaspoons of this mixture to 1 pint of peeled sliced fruit. Turn over and over until all fruit is treated, then add sugar, allowing about 1 cup for each pint of fruit.

Homemakers Can Plan Now for Winter Fireplace

Midsummer tip to homemakers who long for the cheerful glow of an open fire in winter: get hot on the project now. Whether your home is blessed with an amateur craftsman or you plan to have a fireplace added by a professional masonry contractor, you should begin preliminary planning immediately. By careful advance planning you can make sure that the new fireplace will make a maximum contribution to the family's pleasure at a minimum expenditure. One of the most important decisions is location. Select a spot where the tranquillizing effect of an open fire can be enjoyed from many angles. If the fireplace dominates an entire wall, use it as the focus of a design scheme that might include wood-box recesses, storage cabinets and bookcases. For surfacing the hearth and chimney, select a material combining utility and beauty. An ideal choice for this purpose is ceramic tile, which is manufactured at temperatures in excess of 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Ceramic tile is available in an infinite number of colors, sizes, shapes and textures. Details of fireplace construction depend to some extent on the fuel to be burned. For example, coal requires some kind of grating. And irons are necessary for fuels. Birch, beech, ash, hickory, maple and oak are ideal woods for fuels. Soft woods such as pine burn so rapidly their use is limited to kindling a blaze. By the simple addition of hooks in either side, the fireplace can become a joy for the palate as well as the eye. Adjust the hooks to accommodate the rack from your outdoor charcoal grill, and presto! you have year around facilities for family fireplace meals and informal entertaining.

Growing Plants From Seed Proves Easy, Economical

By Katherine B. Walker
Growing your own house plants from seed is one of the best ways to obtain unusual plants at extremely reasonable prices, as I have so often mentioned. Besides that, it's fun, and it isn't the least bit difficult. In fact, if you already have plants that set seed and self-sow readily, you've undoubtedly had volunteer seedlings coming up in the pots without any care on your part. Freckleface (Hypoestes) and Kenilworth-ivy (Cymbalaria) are two that seed so freely they are almost a nuisance. Almost without exception, when you buy packets of seeds, full instructions for sowing and growing are given. The important thing is to prepare a good seedbed, and this may be fine, rich soil, vermiculture, sphagnum-moss, or whatever seems to be indicated by the type of seed you plan to sow. Personally, I like to sow all seeds in small pots of rich soil topped with a 1-inch layer of milled sphagnum-moss. The moss helps keep the seeds and soil moist and prevents "damping-off," while the rich soil below enables the small plants to make good growth before they need to be transplanted. Never sow house plant seed thickly. If the seed is very fine, sow as thinly as possible on top of the moss; if the seed is large, sow two or three to the pot (if you are using the method I follow), placing them in or under the moss according to what size they are. Light watering to keep the moss damp is sufficient until the seeds have sprouted; then the pots should be soaked thoroughly whenever they need it. Our Source Sheet lists three growers who specialize in house plant seeds: the word "Seed" is a part of their company names, so you will have no difficulty distinguishing these from plant sources. If you don't have a Source Sheet, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request for it. Questions and Answers My Christmas cactus is spindly and the leaves are turning yellow. What does it need during the summer? Yellow foliage on this plant may result from too much sun; it needs only brief early morning sunlight. Keep the plant well-fed and watered through the summer, then give slightly less water and very little food during early fall. For full directions on the care of Christmas cactus, please send a self-addressed

French Artist Gives First New York Show

One-Man Exhibition Proves Profitable for Oliver Debre

BY W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

New York — Out of 31 paintings exhibited in a 57th Street gallery here by a young Frenchman, 29 were sold in two weeks, and it seemed certain that the other two would find purchasers before the show ended.

The artist is Olivier Debre; the gallery, Knoedler; the prices, from just under $1,000 to $3,000; the total — nobody cared to say.

Debre had an exhibition last February in Washington in the Phillips gallery, but this was his first one-man display in New York.

But that doesn't mean the name is unknown. His father is Dr. Michel Debre, founder and president of the French International Children's center, and French representative to the child welfare group, known as UNICEF, of the United Nations. His brother is Michel Debre, premier of France. This is the sort of information that has to be dragged out of this personable and reticent young man, however. It was not mentioned in the catalog of his show, and it was not volunteered by the French Cultural services when they called attention to his visit to this city.

Premier's Brother
"My being the premier's brother," he said to me in some embarrassment, "has nothing to do with my painting."

That's correct, for his painting makes its way very easily under its own power. He uses subjects taken from nature, though your eye needs to become familiar with his very personal vision before you appreciate how close his picture is to the object it pretends to represent.

Among the titles are "Woman of the Forest," "Small Beach," "Pitcher and Oranges," "Table and Objects," "The Bride," "The Gay Frost" and "The Chestnut Trees." They are painted in subtle, restrained, retelling color, and in squares and oblongs like something tapped on with the end of a broad putty knife.

Likes "Patrons"
While he has seen quite a lot of American painting, what in a way impressed him most was not our painter but our patron:

"The bourgeois here — that is not the proper word, but I mean the ordinary citizen, the common man — needs painting more than his counterpart does in French Artist Oliver Debre, shown here painting in his native country, was a resounding success when he placed his paintings on display in New York.

South had a sure heart loser and he should have made some attempt to get rid of it before the opponents gained the lead and cashed the heart.

Proper play will find declarer winning the first diamond in his hand and now playing three rounds of clubs — discarding his singleton heart on the third club. If the opponents ruffed, they were only trumping a sure loser, now on, declarer can lose only three spade tricks to make the hand easily.

Our boy in the South seat played the hand perfectly — rough. However, I hardly recommend the manner in which the opening diamond lead the hand was bid. Nixon Visit To Poland Will Help Gomulka

BY STANLEY JOHNSON

Vienna — The Polish communist chief, Wladyslaw Gomulka, today has every reason for a warm smile.

The leader of a country sometimes at odds with both its Soviet allies and the west is now receiving a sort of seal of approval from both sides. Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev recently finished a visit to Poland. He made it plain to both Stalinists and the liberal internal opposition that Gomulka is his chosen and trusted lieutenant in Poland. Former bitterness between the two was forgotten.

This weekend Vice President Richard M. Nixon is going to Poland. Intentionally or not, his visit cannot fail to convince a lot of the Polish public and the peoples of communist nations that Gomulka is also Washington's fair-haired boy.

"We are delighted he is coming, but what is his motive?" was the reaction of some Poles this reporter talked to. They recalled it has long been U.S. policy not to indicate approval of a government in any manner which might discourage its people from hoping for eventual peaceful evolution from Soviet domination.

The U.S. thesis, backed by about $150 million in loans and other help, is that Poland has moved peacefully toward greater independence and this tendency should be encouraged by every means.

U.S. sources say the Nixon visit is one of these means. Nixon was invited formally by the chairman of the Polish state council, or president, Aleksandr Zapadski.

Make Jokes
Zimmerman has been the butt of a good deal of wagery since the Nelson - Nash travel plans became known. One note received at his office congratulated him for having wrested the governorship, as a Republican, from the Democrats without the trouble of an election.

Under the rules of state-house protocol, the acting governor usually confines his official labors to routine matters and emergencies. Zimmerman is unlikely to approve or disapprove any of the generous stacks of bills coming into the executive office for the governor's inspection from the legislature which adjourned a week ago. Such bills will be dribbling onto the governor's desk for the next six weeks or two months.

"Pete (Mahany) went into hysterics. He wanted to help the father. We just couldn't make it down that cliff. I knew the padre was dead.

"We started back to the river. About a mile and half from the river, he plumb tired out. He just sat down on a rock. I said 'Pete, are you coming or not. He just sat there. I went on. That's the last time I saw him."

"When I reached the river, I drank, swam and drank some more."

"I built a raft of logs and rry elastic belt. I left three notes in the sand. One said 'Manson Owens going on raft downriver to bridge. Another, said Pete Mahaney okay last time I saw him in ravine. Third note said Father Gavigan probably dead, fell 150 feet."

Nearly Drowned
"I started downstream. All along I prayed every minute of every day. I never prayed so much in my life. I hit those rapids. I like to drown. I kept praying. The water was like a washing machine. The raft turned over and I went under. I made it to the bank.

Appleton Man Has Art Display At Drama Center

A display of eight paintings by Appleton Artist Maurice Stack, many of them dealing with aspects of the theater, is being shown at the Lawrence college music-drama center in conjunction with this season's Attie theater plays.

The paintings, changed with each play, are done in media including oil, oil wash on gold and silver foil, pen and ink, water color and mosaic. Done from 1955 through June of this year, they deal with the music, drama and dance.

Paintings are displayed on easels in groupings with furniture which fits their color scheme. All work has been framed by Stack.

Stack is doing all Attie theater design work, including makeup, costumes, sets and posters. This is his second season of work with Attie theater.

Youth Report Finished for '60 Meeting

The Outagamie county committee on children and youth has sent its report on county health, education, churches, social welfare and recreation and leisure for the 1960 White House conference on children and youth to the Wisconsin department of health and welfare.

County reports will be compiled for a state report to be presented at the golden anniversary of the White House conference March 27 to April 2, 1960.

The committee recommended establishing a child guidance clinic and a full-time city-county health department to meet county health needs. Education needs include school district reorganization, more supervision and assistance in fields such as testing, guidance and psychiatric assistance, and a county psychiatric program, the report said.

Social welfare needs listed were a central records agency for juvenile offenders, a trained juvenile officer for all county law enforcement agencies, an expanded county safety program and a policeman to be employed by the Appleton Police department.

Committee members were the Rev. Carl E. Wilke, chairman, Charles Heeter, John Rosenbush and Mrs. Eugene Olson.

Illinois Man Bound Over

Waives Preliminary Hearing on Charges Of Forgery Assessor

Waupaca — Johnnie Renfro, 27, Creal Springs, Ill., was bound over to county court under $1,000 bond Friday when he waived preliminary hearing in Justice George Whalen's court on a charge of being an assessor to check forgery.

Renfro has been held in the county jail since July 24 when he was picked up by New London and county police on suspicion of check forgery and a boat and motor theft.

He was charged with being an assessor to forging a $21 check July 22 at Fremont, and benefiting from the forgery.

The sheriff's department and county police are still investigating the boat theft and are attempting to locate another suspect they believe was involved.

The boat taken from Fremont was found at New London, but the motor has not been recovered.

Boater Escapes Injury in Crash Near Fremont Bridge

Fremont — Hugo Bartel, 50, escaped without injury when his boat was hit broadside while he was tending his set line about 8 p.m. Thursday.

The accident happened a few yards north of the Fremont bridge, when Harlan Voigt, 21, operator of the motor boat hit the Bartel boat. Voigt had just left shore to pull some water skiers. His boat pushed above the Bartel boat sinking it into the water and knocking one side out of it.

Bartel climbed into the other boat and was taken to shore. Swimmers near the scene towed the sinking boat to shore. The two men are neighbors.

Boat Club Plans Trip Up Fox to Wrightstown

U. S., Russian Sailors Join in Volleyball Game

Genoa, Italy — A group of grinning American and Russian seamen substituted a volleyball net for the iron curtain in this north Italian port Thursday night.

The Americans and Russians had such a good time, and drew such a crowd, that Italian police eventually had to break up the game.

Sailors off the U.S. Destroyers Bigelow and Stribling started playing volleyball on a pier where the Soviet freighter, Fajzabad, was tied up.

Russian seamen watched the Americans, who invited them to get up a team. They did.

Cheers of sailors from the American destroyers and the Russian freighter attracted such a crowd traffic became jammed on the pier.

Italian police politely asked the Russians and Americans to quit.

The sailors agreed after a round of handshaking and embraces.

The Nez Perce's Rally Before Colonel Gibbon's charge at Big Hole. Wanton killing of their women and children by soldiers and mutilation of their dead by the Army's Indian scouts convinced the Nez Perces that all white men were their enemies.

Best of AMERICAN HERITAGE

The Last Stand Of Chief Joseph

BY ALVIN JOSEPHY, JR.

In June 1877, just one year after the Custer debacle, a new and unexpected Indian outbreak flared in the West, an uprising by formerly peaceful Nez Perces of Oregon and Idaho.

The war, like most Indian troubles, had stemmed from a conflict over land. For centuries the Nez Perces had occupied the high, grassy lands and canyon-scarred plateau land where Washington, Oregon and Idaho come together. A strong and intelligent people, they had lived in peace and friendship with the whites ever since the coming of Lewis and Clark, and it was their proud boast that no member of the tribe ever killed a white man.

Gold Discovered

In 1855, as settlers began to appear in their country, the government called on them to cede part of their land. The Nez Perces willingly accepted the confines of a reservation, but five years later gold was discovered on the reserve, miners poured in, and in 1863 the government attempted to reduce the reservation to less than one-fourth its previous size. Those bands whose homes already lay within the boundaries of the new reservation agreed to sign the treaty. But the other chiefs, representing about two-thirds of the tribe, protested and withdrew from the council without signing.

Among the latter was a prominent old chief named Wellamotkin, father of Chief Joseph and known to the whites as Old Joseph. His band had dwelt for generations in the Wallowa Valley in the northeastern corner of Oregon. As the years went by and Old Joseph's people continued unmolested, it seemed as if their right to the Wallowa had been accepted. But white pressure against its borders increased steadily, and in 1871, as he lay dying, Old Joseph fearfully counseled his son: "When I am gone, think of your country . . . You must stop your ears whenever you are asked to sign a treaty selling your home . . . This country holds your father's body. Never sell the bones of your father and your mother."

Settlers Move In

The crisis came soon after Old Joseph's death. Settlers found a route into the Wallowa and moved in, claiming the Indians' land. Young Joseph protested. On June 16, 1873, President Grant formally set aside the Wallowa "as a reservation for the roaming Nez Perce Indians" and ordered the whites to withdraw. But the settlers, refusing to move, threatened to exterminate Joseph's people if they didn't leave the valley.

As this threat increased, a commission was appointed to make a final settlement. Despite the fact that it was unjust, and that there was no legal basis for it, the decision of the commission was firm: Unless all the non-treaty Nez Perces voluntarily came onto the reservation, they should be placed there by force.

With heavy hearts, the Indians prepared to round up their stock and move. A half year's work was crowded into less than 30 days, as the people combed the mountains and forests for their animals and drove them down the steep draws to the Snake river. Twelve days before their deadline to return, they reached an ancient tribal rendezvous area just outside the border of the reservation. Here they lingered for a last bit of freedom.

Kill Four Whites

It was a fatal pause. One of the young men, whose father had been murdered by a white man, was taunted by an old warrior for having allowed the slaying to go unavenged. The next morning he stole away with two companions. By nightfall, in an outpouring of long-suppressed hatred, the youths had killed four white men along the Salmon river and wounded another. Returning to camp to raise a bigger party, they continued the raids.

Joseph tried to calm his people, but the situation had gone too far. One by one the bands departed to a hiding place farther south. But though he had vigorously opposed war, Joseph would not abandon his people; two days later, he joined them in their new camp at White Bird canyon.

Back at Lapwai, headquarters of the reservation, Gen. O. O. Howard was stunned by the news of the Salmon river outbreaks, because he had thought that all danger was past. At the news of the outbreaks, he hastily ordered two troops of the 1st Cavalry to round up the hostiles and force them onto the reservation.

The Alarm Spreads

The defeat spread alarm throughout the settlements of the Northwest and angered the rest of the nation, to whom the Custer massacre was still fresh. Howard called for troop reinforcements — they came from all over the Pacific coast — and himself took the field.

From the beginning, it had been assumed by the whites that Chief Joseph, Spokesman for the non-treaties in peacetime, had also been leading them in war. But the truth was that on the march and in battle other, more experienced war chiefs were in charge, while Joseph cared for the women and children. The Nez Perce successes were resulting from a combination of overconfidence and mistakes on the part of the whites, the rugged terrain that made pursuit difficult, and, to a very great extent, the Indians' intense courage and patriotic determination to fight for their rights and protect their people. The whites had no way of knowing this, and, as events continued to unfold, the legend that Nez Perce strategy was planned and executed by one man, Joseph, was spread far and wide.

Long Battle

Pursuing the Nez Perces, Howard opened fire on their camp on Clearwater river. The fighting raged all day and continued in the same spot the next morning, an almost unprecedented length of time for Indians to maintain battle in one location. But the chiefs decided that there had been enough fighting without decision. They withdrew down the bluff, escaped Howard, and after much discussion, decided to cross the mountain and join the Crows in Montana, where they could hunt the plains in peace.

Smarting under increasing criticism from Washington, Howard once more took after the Indians. It was a painful and gruelling trip across Idaho to Montana for both pursuers and pursued, but the Indian families, stumbling along over steep and rocky trails, guarded by their warriors and driving some 2,000 horses with them, managed to keep well ahead of the troops.

On their march the Nez Perces scrupulously avoided any hostile act against white settlers. Receiving friendly treatment from Montana citizens, the Indians believed that now they were out of Idaho, the war was over and they were safe. But when they pitched camp on the Big Hole river, a surprise attack from a new army detachment caught them unawares. The Indians fought back desperately from their tepees. While Joseph directed the breaking of camp, the warriors remained, picking off anyone who showed himself. The soldiers ran out of water, and cries from the unattended wounded filled the air. Mercifully, the warriors broke off the engagement.

To Peaceful Canada

The Nez Perces now quickened their retreat across southwestern Montana. Gone were illusions that the whites would let them be. In their desperation, only one haven seemed left to them. Like Sitting Bull, they would seek refuge among the tribes in the country of Queen Victoria. The column headed eastward.

On and on the Indians hurried. Near Canyon creek they captured a stage coach and, letting it occupants escape, had a day of great fun, driving it along in the rear of the column.

The sport ended abruptly when a hard-riding cavalry outfit overtook them, and there was a furious fight. The Indians escaped, but the long pursuit was beginning to tell on them. They were becoming tired and dispirited. They had lost between 60 and 80 people at the Big Hole, including some of the most able warriors. And they were losing their horses. As they moved beyond Canyon creek their old allies, the Crows, now in service as scouts for the army, began to attack them. About 30 miles short of the Canadian line, exhausted by their long flight, they paused, confident that they had outdistanced all pursuers.

Once more they were wrong, outflanked by the telegraph, and this time the pause would end in their last stand. From Fort Keogh in the east came Col. Nelson A. Miles with nearly 600 men. When they sighted the Nez Perces close to Snake creek on the northern edge of the Bear Paw mountains, they attacked immediately. Most of the Indians' remaining war leaders were killed in the fighting.

His own heavy casualties deterred Miles from ordering another charge, however, and both sides dug in. Four days later Howard reached the battlefield. The appearance of their old enemy, heralding the arrival of reinforcements for Miles, took the final heart out of the suffering Nez Perces. The chiefs held a final council. Joseph mounted a horse and rode slowly up the hill from the camp and across to the army lines.

As he reached the officers, he dismounted and handed

Miles his rifle. Then, stepping back, he adjusted his blanket to leave his right arm free, and began one of the most touching and beautiful speeches of surrender ever made:

"I am tired of fighting. Our chiefs are killed. Look-

Menasha Council

333-Foot Strip in Railroad
May Go to Stationery Firm

Menasha — Leading officials for about 290 feet, will Tuesday's city council meeting allow the company to build a 3-office addition on steel beams above the street, allowing vehicles to park below.

In Paved Street
Much of the land to be vacated, if the council approves the move, lies in the paved, traveled portion of Railroad street. The loading dock, jutting out from the building line, is in the street.

Railroad street is dedicated as a 50-foot-wide thoroughfare. (The measurement is taken between edges of sidewalks closest to buildings. Thus, a street includes pavement, terraces and sidewalks, on both sides.)

The city planning commission May 28 unanimously recommended the city vacate the strip of street land and deed it at no cost to the firm. Minutes of its meeting state "The commission, on motion of Ald. (Fred) Rohloff, seconded by C. M. F. (Robert) Schwartz, unanimously recommended that the entire length of School Stationers corporation, described as follows, be vacated." Following was the legal description in 21 typed lines.

As Incentive
Besides Rohloff and Schwartz, the commission includes Mayor R. G. DuCharme, chairman, City Atty. William R. Giese, City Engineer M. J. Noth and Commissioners Clyde J. Melcher, Carl Lenz and Ray Prange. Noth, Lenz and Prange did not attend the May 28 meeting, the minutes show.

One alderman told the Post-Crescent the commission, on which he does not serve, felt the city should give the land to the stationery firm as an incentive to keeping its operation in Menasha.

He questioned whether the firm, with its equipment in a building it owns, would leave the city.

Illinois Family Uninjured as Car Breaks Off Poles

Oshkosh — A passenger in the car driven by Marcella C. Harris, route 3, Waupaca, was injured when the car struck a truck on a town of Poygan road about 5:13 p.m. Friday.

Mrs. Orrell Reetz, route 1, Winneconne, was taken to a Winneconne physician by her husband when she complained of an injured back.

The Harris car struck a truck driven by Lawrence A. Muscavitch, 61, route 2, Omro, as he was making a left turn into a driveway. Skid marks indicated the car traveled 123 feet before striking the truck.

Breaks Off Poles

Four members of the Woodrow G. Getchell family, route 3, Waukegan, were injured when the car driven by Getchell, 44, went off Highway 45, just north of Highway 114 at Gillingham corners at 6:30 this morning. The car traveled 371 feet in the ditch and broke two utility poles carrying high tension wires.

Getchell said he worked until 11 p.m. Friday, arising early this morning to drive to Antigo, where he formerly lived, to visit relatives for the weekend. He said on approaching car in his lane forced him off the road.

The car traveled 160 feet before hitting the first pole, another 174 feet before hitting the second pole and continued for 36 feet. Electrical service to the Elmer Smith house nearby was disrupted by the accident.

The Neenah ambulance was called but was not needed.

No Progress Indicated In Steel Negotiations

New York — Negotiations between the steel industry and the United Steelworkers have recessed for the weekend without any indications of progress toward ending a strike which started July 15.

Joseph F. Finnegan, national mediator, met for more than two hours yesterday with union officials. The meeting was described simply as exploratory.

Industry representatives said they were returning to Pittsburgh for the weekend.

Two High Tension Poles were broken and wires knocked down but no one was hurt when the car driven by Woodrow G. Getchell, 44, Waukegan, Ill., went off Highway 45 at Gillingham corners and traveled 364 feet in the ditch. With Getchell was his wife and two children.

Snafu Creates Problem for VA

Minneapolis — Work-ers at the GI Insurance center at suburban Fort Snelling today were seeking to unravel a snafu involving a thousand cubic feet of waste paper.

The veterans administration office processes some million premium payments a month from former soldiers in 12 states. Somehow, a batch of unopened letters containing checks got mixed in with the waste and was carted off to a paper company.

The miscue was discovered by a workman feeding the waste into a shredder when he turned up 17 unopened letters. The VA ordered the entire batch of waste paper returned and put a crew to work combing through it.

The spokesman said checks usually average $8 to $10. He expressed confidence none had gone through the shredder because they are fed into it one at a time.

Authorities identified the prisoners as Gennaro D'Amico, 38, serving 20 years for attempting to kill a policeman, and Edward J. Andrews, 28, serving life for the rape-killing of an 88-year-old school-teacher.

The third escaper was identified as Robert Hashberger, 19, who had been transferred to the prison hospital from the state mental institution because of tendencies toward violence.

The trio captured Guard Roger Remillard, 23, at the point of a screwdriver after they leaped from the 20-foot wall.

Laird Bill Provides for State Cancer Research

Marshfield Republican Seeks to Obtain $2.5 Million Grant for McArdle Laboratory

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — Rep. Melvin R. Laird, Marshfield Republican, today introduced a bill authorizing $2.5 million for additional facilities to the McArdle Memorial Laboratory for Cancer Research at the University of Wisconsin.

Laird said this bill, which also carries authorization for an additional $27.5 million in construction for cancer and heart research facilities in 14 other locations, was introduced because of a letter written him by Dr. H. P. Rusch, director of the McArdle laboratory.

In the letter, Dr. Rusch told the congressman that Wisconsin U. President C. E. Eljem and Dr. J. Z. Bowers, dean of the medical school, endorsed Dr. Rusch's position that "the need for more space for research in this country should be met before funds are provided for the support of research abroad."

The Laird bill authorizes $30 million in direct grants to the 15 universities and colleges which would receive the research funds and does not require that the institution "match" the funds with their own contributions.

Dr. Rusch suggested that "the criteria for judging grant eligibility and priority should be even more exacting than is the case when matching funds are required."

Emphasizing that his bill is merely an "authorization," and does not actually carry funds, Laird said he hoped that he would be able to incorporate the measure in next year's health, education and welfare money bill. He is a member of the appropriations subcommittee which will handle this bill.

The senate-house conference report, which was sent to the president Thursday carries $400 million for medical research for the national institutes of health.

Reds Ought to See Coast Home

San Jose, Calif. — If Nikita Khrushchev doesn't think the model American home at the Moscow exhibition is typical, says Richard Girvin, the Soviet premier ought to come to California and see for himself.

Girl's Request to Russian Premier Brings Results

Minneapolis — A letter she wrote recently to Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev paid off this week in a weighty shipment for the rock collection a suburban Plymouth girl is making.

Mary Kay Brewster, 11, expected, at best, that a few pebble-sized samples of Russia's geologic formations might be forthcoming. Instead she got a hefty box carrying 15 mineral formations about as big as baseballs.

The postpaid shipment was forwarded by N. P. Varfolomeyev, who identified himself as director of museums. Among other things, the box contained bauxite, from which aluminum is made, and oxidized copper ore.

'Zorro' Will Join Nats

Young Shortstop Leaves Foxes For Trial in Majors; Dibelius Recalled by Fox Cities Club

Zoilo "Zorro" Versailles, the Fox Cities' flashy shortstop, was called up Friday by Washington — the Foxes' major league affiliate.

The 18-year-old Versailles left his 3-1 league teammates at Topeka, Kans., at 7 p. m. Friday to join the Senators, who are currently playing in Chicago. Versailles was expected to start at shortstop for the Senators either this afternoon or in Sunday's doubleheader.

Chance For Job
"Zorro" will be given an opportunity to win the regular job, according to Senator President Calvin Griffith.

Barber Shoots 65 to Lead PGA Tourney

Souchak Trails Jerry by 2 Shots At Halfway Mark

BY JIM KLOBUCHAR

Minneapolis — The David and Goliath struggle between Jerry Barber and Mike Souchak entered a third and climactic round today.

Barber, tiny and frail looking, held the lead at the halfway point of the National PGA championship, but the broad, ominous shadow of Souchak stalked him again. Twice in the last four years the little man from Los Angeles has been on the brink of tournament victories only to have them plucked away by great Souchak finishes.

This weekend the stakes are higher. After his remarkable 5-under-par 65 at Minneapolis Golf club course Friday, the 43-year-old Barber is in a position to crown a 19-year pro golfing career with one of the glamorous titles in the game.

Heading into today's round Barber was six under par at 134, two strokes in front of Souchak, the gentle-mannered mauler from the Pennsylvania coal country. Both had first-day 69s to share in a 9-day split for first place.

Attended behind them were Doug Sanders at 138, defending champ Dow Finsterwald and Gene Littler at 139 and Cary Middlecoff, National Open Champion Bill Casper and Lionel Hebert at 140.

All the leaders save Casper and Littler cracked 35-35-70 par in the searing sun at the crowded suburban golf course Friday. Barber's 65, including a hard-to-believe 30 on the front nine, was the finest round ever played on the course.

Souchak, also seeking his first major national title, shot a 67, Sanders 66, Finsterwald and Middlecoff 68s, Hebert 69, Littler 70 and Casper a 71.

With that kind of lineup after 36 holes the forty-first PGA was considerably more than a personal duel between Souchak and Barber. But, for today, their clash—they play in consecutive threesomes—was the focus of the whole tournament.

The field was down to 97 today, with another cut to the low 60 due after today's round. Golfing old timer Gene Sarazen made it with 147, but withdrew because of fatigue.

The Senators Friday also called up southpaw pitcher Jim Kaat from their Chattanooga farm in an effort to shake the team out of a slump that has resulted in 13 straight defeats.

The Foxes have recalled Menasha bonus player Ron Dibelius from Missoula of the Class C Pioneer league. Business Manager Bob Willis says Dibelius is expected to report in time for the Foxes' next home game—Wednesday night.

"We're going bad," Griffith told Willis by telephone. "And 'Cookie' (Washington manager Lavagetto) and I feel that Versailles will plug a big gap in our infield. We've lost a number of games at shortstop."

The Nats' shortstop job has been "up for grabs" all season. Bill Conzolo and Ron Samford have been alternating there.

Rookie of Year
Versailles, "rookie of the year" in the Class D New York Pennsylvania league last season, missed by one vote being unanimously selected to the 3-1 league all-star team this year. He whacked four hits and drove in five runs in the All-Stars' 17-2 rout of Green Bay.

"Zorro" was hitting .278 here—with 101 hits in 363 at bats, 19 doubles, two triples and nine home runs and 47 runs batted in. He was second on the team in homers, third in RBIs and a dangerous base runner.

Versailles has great range at shortstop—going equally well to his right and left and has a fine arm. Versailles had to be "bought" by the Senators from the Foxes Friday since he was not here on option. The Foxes owned his contract outright.

Though, he admitted he hated to lose Versailles, Willis remarked that he was "always glad to see a boy get to the big leagues."

'Chuck' Ulrich Quits Professional Football

Lake Forest, Ill. — Defensive tackle "Chuck" Ulrich of the Cardinals has announced his retirement from professional football.

Ulrich, with the Cardinals for five years, Friday said he plans to devote more time to teaching and business activities.

Now 28, he formerly played with the University of Illinois.

"Zorro" Versailles, spectacular young shortstop of the Fox Cities Foxes, is scheduled to join the parent Washington Senators today in Chicago. The Senators called him up Friday from their Three-I league farm club.

Foxes Fall in 1959 Finale at Topeka

Move on to Lincoln After Absorbing 9 to 3 Setback

Topeka, Kans. — Happy to still on the injury list, the Foxes played with a patchwork lineup. Vila moved to short; "Chuck" Weatherpoon played third; and pitcher Rene Nodarse patrolled left field.

Friday night, the Foxes lost their third straight game to Topeka, 9-3. The Foxes have concluded their season's series in the Reds' park, with a record of only two wins in nine games.

Bomb Furlow, Achl
In winning their seventh successive game, the Reds bombed out Earl Furlow and John Achl for seven runs in the first two innings. The loss dropped the Foxes into fifth place in the second-round race.

Al Alvarez singled home Topeka's two runs in the first. The 5-run second was featured by walks to Pasilla, winning pitcher Marv Fodor, and Neal Skeeters. Rudy Tanner's sacrifice fly, Alvarez's run-scoring single, Jim Niemann's 2-run single, an error (on Hernan Vila) and Dick Beall's RBI ground-out. Lee Stange finally put out the blaze.

Hits 2 Homers
Solo homers by Catcher Pavletich in the third and seventh accounted for the final two Topeka runs.

Dickie Harris drove in two of the Foxes runs—with a single in the fifth and a 1-out homer in the ninth. Phil Condu doubled home the other Fox Cities run—in the fifth.

With shortstop "Zorro" Versailles leaving to join the Washington Senators and third baseman Carlos Pascual leaving the jinx ball park behind, the Fox Cities Foxes today moved to Lincoln, Neb., for the start of a 3-game series with the Chiefs tonight.

New Hospitals For Military Cut From Bill

deletion as a result of his experience this spring in Normandy, France.

Laird was referring to his discovery of an $8.5 million air force hospital, which could house 1,000 patients, but which a year after its completion, remained totally unoccupied.

Phantom Hospital
During hearings on the military construction money bill, Laird told his colleagues how he had "accidentally" come across the "phantom" hospital while touring the Normandy country-side. The hospital was half hidden by over-grown weeds and guarded only by a fire-engine manned by three airmen.

Top air force officials, when taken to task about wasting the tax-payers' money by building a multimillion dollar hospital and then deserting it, said that it would be utilized in the future at about a third of its capacity.

"There were about $72 million in the military construction bill requested for new hospitals," Laird told this reporter. "We will not release this money until we have a full report on existing hospital facilities and of future needs for them. So until that time, the military will not be permitted to make any new hospital starts."

He said the defense department had not requested any hospital building funds for installations in Wisconsin.

Around Home

Unique experiences have to be really unique to rate a second listen in the Post-Crescent's composing room, but LeRoy London, 2816 E. Wisconsin avenue, caused something of a stir this morning when he announced an airplane had collided with his car.

And it actually happened. While watching television Friday evening, London heard a crash from the direction of the driveway, where his car was parked. He went outside and found an airplane had zoomed into the side of his auto.

Damage wasn't too extensive. The plane was one of the small model-types powered by a tiny gasoline engine. It is, as London is being told by his fellow workers, a good story—until you hear the ending.

Ballard Road Crossing to Get Signals

The Public Service commission Friday ordered the Chicago and North Western Railway company to install automatic signals at its Ballard road crossing.

Moves to get PSC action on the signals began last March after a fatal accident there. Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps wrote to the commission asking that a hearing be called. He said two fatal accidents at the crossing in recent years could have been avoided if automatic signals were in operation. He called the Ballard road crossing a "city crossing with rural signals" (stationary signs.)

The commission authorized the hearing on a petition by County Highway Commissioner Clarence Brownson.

Woman Struck by Car While Crossing Street

Meta Schultz, of 2109 N. Oneida street, received a bruised right knee when she was struck by a car while crossing W. Wisconsin avenue about 9:45 Friday morning at the Appleton street intersection.

The car was driven by Mrs. Mary E. Lovdahl, 1710 N. Oneida street, who was going east on W. Wisconsin.

Three other accidents, none serious, were investigated by Appleton police.

Lower, another daughter, three sisters, two grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Seven Drum and Bugle Corps To Attend Appleton Contest

Seven corps will take part in Appleton's first drum and bugle corps contest in 12 years on Aug. 16 at Whiting field.

No Link Found Between Death And Accident

There is no apparent link between the death Thursday of a Milwaukee man and an accident June 12 in Kaukauna in which he was involved, Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps has been told.

The Milwaukee county medical examiner's office told Kemps in a report today that George Mitchell, 73, Milwaukee, died Thursday. Mitchell, the report said, was involved in an accident on Highway 41 when the car driven by his son-in-law collided with a semi-trailer truck.

Mitchell was X-rayed at Kaukauna Community hospital for chest injuries and released June 13, the report said. An autopsy showed death was due to a heart condition and had no connection with the accident.

Minors Cause Many Traffic Accidents

Chicago — How big a role does the teenage driver play in the overall auto accident picture?

The National Safety council, in its newly published statistical yearbook, "Accident Facts," points out these facts: Of the 82 million licensed drivers in America, about six million — or 7 per cent of them — are under 20 years old.

However, this 7 per cent is responsible for more than 12 per cent of the nation's auto accidents.
